Commanders of Her Armies Momentarily Expect Orders to March Into Ruhr District.

ESSEN WILL BE USED AS BASE OF FRENCH

COAL DECISION TODAY.
Paris, January 8.—(By the Associated Press.)—The allied reparations commission gave the German experts a hearing lasting nearly three hours this afternoon on the subject of the German default in coal deliveries. The commission then adjourned until tomorrow morning. It expects to take a vote about noon tomorrow on the French demand that Germany be declared in voluntary default.

GERMANY ADMITS DEFAULT.
Berlin, January 8.—(By the Associated Press.)—The German government today replied to the French accusations of Germany's alleged default in the delivery of various materials on the reparations account.

The government admits having not completely fulfilled the obligations as regard deliveries of coal, timber and paving stones, but attributes this partly to the fact that the demands greatly exceeded Germany's capacity; due partly to strikes, transportation difficulties and other circumstances over which the government says it has no control and to a great extent to what it describes as the "unwarranted" conduct of French authorities. For these reasons the government disputes the accusation that the default is voluntary.

Cologne, Germany, January 8.—Movements of French troops now filtering into the Rhineland are surrounded with the secrecy of war-time. Commanders of the French armies expect, momentarily, orders from Paris to advance into the rich Ruhr basin.

Advance contingents of French engineers and customs officials already have arrived at Düsseldorf and other cities in the Rhineland, en route to the Krupp munitions factories which will be the first city to be occupied in the new movement. Essen will be used as the base of French operations in the Ruhr.

The increasing number of points in cities in the path leading to the Ruhr gives the impression that the actual occupation is largely a matter of time. Fifteen hundred French troops, fully equipped with all the accoutrements of war, have been quartered in Düsseldorf, ready to advance to Essen on a moment's notice.

All preparations, a trip through the area disclosed, have been made. Motor transports are on the ground, waiting to carry the troops into the industrial sector.

Orders Issued at Night.
It is anticipated that the order of advance will be issued from Paris at night and that dawn of the following morning will see all strategic points occupied. The troops, it is expected, will have advanced before the French government gives the announcement of its order to the world.

Small detachments of police are secreting themselves in these movements and the forces themselves do not know coming up from the interior of France, their exact destinations.

French members of the allied commission in Essen have completed preparations for the reception of French troops as well as engineers.

PLAN DEEP PROBE INTO LOUISIANA OUTRAGES TODAY

TO GIVE TESTIMONY

Part of Troops on Guard Withdrawn, Thus Lessening Likelihood of Declaring Martial Law

Bastrop, La., January 8.—Legal forces of the state of Louisiana prepared tonight to dig deep tomorrow into the tragedy of Morehouse parish—the torture and slaying of Watt Daniel and Thomas Richards, whose deaths have been charged by Governor John M. Parker to "klan murderers."

Today was largely one of conferences in preparation for the resumption tomorrow of the open court hearing with testimony in the record already to show that the two men were put to torture and death by means of a specially devised machine of punishment after being taken prisoner by what was described as a black-hooded mob.

Twelve witnesses were summoned today to testify. Their testimony is expected to deal largely with the capture of Daniel and Richards and the finding of their mutilated and decapitated bodies in Lake La Fourche two weeks ago.

Other than the announcement of the list of witnesses, the removal of a company of the state troops sent here to act in conjunction with civil authorities was probably the most important surface development, and tended to allay an impression that martial law was in prospect. Adjutant General L. A. Toombs, of the Louisiana national guard, sent here to observe conditions and take any

Constitution Bureau.
Raleigh, N.C., January 8.—(By the Associated Press.)—The latest cabinet gossip in connection with the recent resignation of Secretary of the Interior Fall, to take effect next March, has settled upon the name of Senator Harry S. New, of Indiana, who, it is declared, will be tendered the appointment by the president.

One of the closest friends of President Harding, Senator New ever since his defeat in the republican primary of his state last summer, has been mentioned as the most likely heir to the next vacancy in the cabinet. The objection to his selection is

FONTAINE LOSES ACTION AGAINST SON OF WHITNEY

Amsterdam, N. Y., January 8.—Supreme Court Justice Borst today dismissed the action of Evan Burrows Fontaine, dancer, against Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, son of Harry Payne Whitney, of New York, to recover $100,000 for breach of promise. He held that the testimony of the plaintiff was without credence and that he did not believe there was ever any promise of marriage or that young Whitney was the father of her child as alleged in the complaint.

At Nyack last week Justice Thompson vacated the annulment of Miss Fontaine's marriage to Sterling Adair and ordered the matter referred to a grand jury with a view to prosecution for perjury.

Here to "Ask for Favors

DELEGATION WELCOMED BY SECRETARY MELLON

of Views, Little Was Accomplished at Brief Session Monday.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Washington, January 8.—Negotiations between the American and British debt funding commissions opened today with a declaration by Stanley Baldwin, British chancellor of the exchequer, that all his government wanted was a "square deal" in the settlement of its war debt to the United States aggregating more than four billions of dollars.

Asserting that the mission which he heads was not here "to ask for favors or to impose on generosity," the chancellor said what was desired was a fair business settlement, "that would secure for America 'the repayment to the last cent of those credits which the United States government established in America for our services in the war.'"

Mr. Baldwin warned, however, that the British government, having regard for the present heavy burden of taxation on its people, its commitments in costly mandates and other circumstances had to consider very carefully the terms of the liquidation of the debt lest an annual obligation be assumed which it might be impossible to meet in years of bad trade and falling revenue.

The chancellor's outline of the British position was in reply to a

Woman and Lover In Triangle, Will Be Hanged Today

Despite Dramatic Appeals, Home Secretary Refuses to Interfere.

London, January 8.—(By the Associated Press.)—Mrs. Edith Thompson and Frederick Bywaters will pay the extreme penalty by hanging tomorrow for the murder of the woman's husband, Percy Thompson. A dramatic last hour effort was made on Mrs. Thompson's behalf by her solicitor, Mr. Stern, who hurried last night to the Shropshire country home of the secretary for home affairs, William C. Brudenell, in an endeavor to obtain a stay of execution. But this was without avail.

The solicitor's effort was based mainly on Bywaters' solemn and vehement reiteration, alleged to have been made Saturday to his mother and other relatives, that Mrs. Thompson was innocent. The lawyer argued that while it was true Bywaters had made the same assertion at the trial, he now had nothing to gain and it was inconceivable that a man would go to his doom with a lie on his lips.

The home secretary, however, replied that Bywaters' declaration of Mrs. Thompson's innocence had been made before and had not been believed.

It is only a few years since the court of criminal appeal was established and the home secretary caused a communique to be issued stating that after full consideration of all the representations made to him, he finds no grounds to depart from his decision.

Crowds lingered this evening around the gates of Holloway jail where at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning the first execution of a woman in 16 years will take place. Simultaneously Bywaters will be hanged at Pentonville prison.

BILTMORE HOTEL COST $10,000,000 WHEN COMPLETED

Work Has Already Started on First $6,000,000 Unit to Be Completed by July, 1924.

BOWMAN AND PARTY
INSPECT SITE MONDAY

Chain Head Describes
Plans for Magnificent Structure on Peachtree.

Ten million dollars will be spent on the Atlanta Biltmore hotel before its completion, it was disclosed Monday following the arrival in Atlanta of John McEntee Bowman, of New York city, head of the Bowman chain of hotels, who, with William Candler, will build a magnificent structure of 500 rooms at West Peachtree and Fifth streets.

At present $6,000,000 will be expended on the project, giving the city one of the most pretentious hotels south of New York city, to be completed, it is expected, by July, 1924. Later improvements will be made on the property at an approximate cost of $4,000,000, it was stated. Preliminary work of cleaning up the site is being done now by a force of 25 men.

Mr. Bowman and his party arrived in Atlanta late Monday afternoon, and were met by William Candler, and officials of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce and the Atlanta convention bureau.

Guests at Dinner.
Monday night Mr. Bowman and his associates were honor guests at a brilliant dinner given at the Piedmont hotel by officials of the Atlanta Hotel Men's association and the convention bureau. Details of the hotel plans were made public at the dinner.

Colonel F. J. Paxson, president of the Atlanta convention bureau, was toastmaster at the dinner, which assembled 50 Atlanta citizens. W. C. Koyser, president of the Atlanta Hotel Men's association, and a personal friend of Mr. Bowman for many years, welcomed the visitors to the city.

In a brief address, Mr. Bowman gave William Candler full credit for bringing the enterprise to Atlanta, and expressed his faith in the future growth of Atlanta. William Candler made a spirited and optimistic talk. The concluding speech was made by Major John S. Cohen.

The dining hall was elaborately decorated for the occasion. Fred Houser, secretary of the Hotel Men's association and the convention bureau, arranged the event.

Associates Are Here.
Accompanying Mr. Bowman to Atlanta from New York are Leonard Schultz, of the architectural firm of Schultz & Weaver, designers of the Atlanta Biltmore; Paul Starrett, president of Starrett Brothers, builders, who hold the construction contract; Charles J. Forbes, president of the Underwriters' Mortgage company, which has purchased a $3,000,000 issue of mortgage bonds from the hotel promoters; and Charles Flynn, capitalist of New York and Havana, and Mrs. P. Starrett and Mrs. Forbes.

Robert J. Kennedy, publicity representative for the Bowman hotels, preceded the party, arriving here during the morning. Colonel W. A. Starrett, of the building firm, has been in the city for several days. The Bowman party is registered at the Georgian Terrace.

Site Is Inspected.
Although an inspection of the hotel site was made late Monday, the approaching darkness made it brief, and

Aerial Traffic Rules Are Asked By Congressman

Bill Asserts There Is No
Free Right of Flight
Over U. S.

Washington, January 8.—The law of the air would be established under a bill introduced today by Chairman Winslow, of the house commerce committee. The measure, unique in that it deals with a field heretofore untouched by lawmakers, would vest in the secretary of commerce authority over all civil aeronautics, with a commissioner at $7,500 a year to administer it.

Besides creating new basic laws to meet the regulatory problems of the air, and of the aircraft industry, the bill would undertake to apply statutes in respect to land and water transportation to transportation in the air.

Collaborating between the commerce department, the army, navy, marine corps and coast guard would be established by the bill, and a "civil aeronautics consulting board," composed of seven members chosen from

WOMAN'S DIVISION CHAMBER ELECTS MISS KENDRICK

Miss Mable Kendrick was re-elected chairman of the governing board of the woman's division of the Chamber of Commerce at a meeting held Monday night. Miss Susie Wells was appointed vice chairman and Miss John Bouie, second vice chairman. Election of a secretary for the division was deferred until a later date.

The governing board for 1923 will include Miss Kendrick, Miss Wales, Miss Bouie, Miss Laura Smith, Miss Jane Vandevrebe, Miss Norma McClean, Mrs. Edna R. Hopkins, Miss Mary Mendenhall, Miss Mabel Robson, Mrs. T. E. Dillard, Miss Leona Westbrook and Miss Katherine Lovett. Prospects for the future were discussed and all speakers predicted the most successful year the organization has experienced.

Unopposed Cases Root of Divorce Evil, Says Judge

Comments on Ministers' Pledge Not to Perform
Weddings of Divorcees.

"The laws of Georgia are not responsible for the divorce evil; the fault lies in the administration of laws covering divorcees."

This was the declaration Monday of former Judge Sheppard Bryan, of Fulton superior court, following action of the Atlanta Evangelical Ministers' association Monday morning in adopting resolutions pledging its members to refuse to perform marriages in which divorced persons figure. The lone exception to the rule adopted by the Atlanta ministers is to be made when a divorce has been granted on the biblical grounds of infidelity.

"The laws of Georgia," said Judge Bryan, "specify the exact grounds upon which persons can secure divorces. These causes were laid down by our law-makers, and apparently they represent what the public of Georgia approve."

Can Change Laws.
"If the people of the state do not approve of these specified causes for divorce, they should change the system of law governing the subject. I would not be placed in a position of criticizing the gentlemen of the clergy who have banded divorced persons in marriage ceremonies, but in my opinion, when the state recognizes the fact that two people cannot live together peacefully and happily and recognize their divorce, ministers should respect the decision of the state and also recognize the divorcees."

"However, I repeat that indiscriminate granting of divorces which are undefended is the real root of the divorce evil. The cure to the undefended divorce situation will be found to be the remedy for the entire situation."

That the action Monday of the evangelical ministers is one of the greatest moral blows ever aimed at the growing divorce evil in this city and state, was the opinion Monday night of those interested in curbing the growth of marital failures.

Won't Affect Marriages.
One of the leaders in the fight of recent months against the divorce evil said Monday night that the resolution would scarcely affect the number of marriages of divorced persons, in view of the fact that the civil ceremonies can be performed and that civil authorities entitled to officiate at weddings are not in position to protest against civil divorce decrees.

"The intention of the ministers," it was added, "was I believe, to strike a moral blow at a condition that daily grows more alarming. It puts the great moral class of the city on record squarely as opposing the divorce evil, and it may lead to a more careful system of hearing divorce petitions and ultimately to a time when it will be a difficult matter to obtain a separation."

37 Ministers Sign.
Rev. William J. DeBardeleben, pastor of Payne Memorial church, introduced the resolution. It was signed by

Resolutions Indorsed at Monday Meeting Condemning Anonymous
Letters Against Them.

Taking cognizance of an anonymous letter preferring charges against officers and members of the finance and building committees of the Atlanta Woman's club and criticizing them for having revised the constitution and by-laws, the club at its meeting Monday afternoon indorsed a resolution condemning the letter as "a cowardly attack" and expressing "utmost confidence in the officers and committees of the club so attacked."

Officials explained that the only reason for bringing the anonymous letter before the club was the fact that a prominent clubwoman had written a letter to the organization officially drawing it to attention and requesting an answer to the charges. Charges in the unsigned document, which was mailed to prominent Atlan-

SITUATION TENSE AS VOTERS PLAN TO BOLT PRIMARY

"Bolters" Declare They Will Vote for Seabrook, Despite Omission of His Name From Ballot.

'BOLTERS' DENOUNCED
AT MASS MEETING

Present City Council Declares It Will Elect Department Heads on January 13.

Savannah, Ga., January 8.—(Special.)—Savannah tonight is stirred by the most intense excitement that ever was aroused even in Savannah, city of dramatic and sizzling political situations.

Following the announcement from council today that the name of Judge Paul E. Seabrook would not appear upon the official ballot in tomorrow's municipal general election, and that only the name of Murray M. Stewart, with the aldermanic board declared elected, in the recent primary, would be on that ticket, Seabrook followers began a fervid day of activity, based upon preparations already made in anticipation of such announcement.

Despite the declaration of council, Seabrook followers proceeded with the campaign today as if no decision adverse to them had been reached. By extras of the newspaper, in systematic use of the phone, by a letter mailed yesterday to every woman voter, by meetings in a dozen places today and two great mass meetings tonight, and by placards and banners, Seabrook "bolters" were assured that they can exercise their "constitutional" right to vote for Seabrook tomorrow.

Marked Ballots Available.
That ballots will be available, official ballots with the name of Stewart overprinted and the name of Seabrook printed plainly in red, that there will be organized protection at the polls for all, especially for the women, and also for the negroes, who, it is claimed, have been threatened if they attempt to vote; it is assured in these ways that not only will there be opportunity to vote for the "independent" candidate, but that the votes will be counted.

If there is reason to believe a fair count has not been had the case will be taken in legal manner to the highest court in the United States if necessary, say Seabrook leaders. Seabrook followers are called to assemble at 7:30 tomorrow morning to march to the polls and are urged to remain at the polls all day.

Women in machines to the number of scores volunteered late today to distribute free copies of 10,000 extra newspapers with latter favorable to their candidate and the homes of the people were provided with these papers.

M'Lendon Suggests Association Based on 'Sermon on Mount'

Politics Adjourned, Would
ship Over State.

BY RALPH T. JONES.
Georgia faces an "off-year" in politics for 1923.

Elections, national, state and municipal, were all over with the passing of 1922, with the single exception of the Savannah mayoralty mixup, and that ought to be settled shortly, without too much interruption of the state's serenity.

Charges and counter-charges of stump speakers are stilled. Mud-slinging and back-biting are over. Winners have had time to tone down their exuberance and losers have mitigated their chagrin.

Men, some of them good, some of them indifferent, and, maybe, a few of them bad, have been chosen to direct the public destinies for another period of time. Officeholders needn't worry, surely, for a few coming months about re-election. They have become impatient to sum up the work and submit the document in as complete a form as possible.

These assurances of the allies, put forth to lessen the tension, probably influenced Riza Nur Bey to adopt a more conciliatory attitude today on the question of Turkey's sanitary arrangements. An international board has heretofore supervised health conditions at Turkish ports, especially with relation to quarantine.

Riza Nur declared that his country would have no more of this, because Turkey was quite capable of managing her own sanitary regulations, but he accepted in principle the institution of an international commission under a Turkish president to supervise the sanitary regulation of the Dardanelles and the Bosphorus. This commission will be selected from

Denouncing methods of the board of education in its failure to "carry out promises" made to voters in the sixth ward regarding additional school facilities, Councilman Harry York, of that ward, appeared before the board Monday afternoon and declared "the voters of the sixth ward had been lied to by bond propagandists, and would like an opportunity to repudiate the school bonds."

Councilman York's statements created considerable comment from members of the education board, Commissioner W. L. McCalley, Jr., chairman of the finance committee, defending the board's action and replying that the board intended to carry out all of its promises when sufficient funds were available for doing so.

A delegation consisting of approximately 30 men and women voters of the sixth ward was present to voice protest of the plans to leave the Calhoun-ly school in an incomplete state by cutting off one story of the building and constructing a temporary roof.

'Voters Were Lied To.'

TURKS WILL NOT FACE ULTIMATUM

Free Discussion of Still Disputed Points Will Be Permitted, According to Allies' Statement.

Lausanne, January 8.—(By the Associated Press.)—When the allies' conception of what the Lausanne treaty should be is drafted, there is no intention and will be no disposition to take it to the Turks and say: "Now will you sign it—yes or no." That was what the allied spokesmen made clear today in discussing the document which the treaty experts are compiling.

A good deal of mystery surrounds this document and a report has been current that the allies would present it to the Turks one of these days in the form of an ultimatum. This report has excited the Turks considerably, probably making them more intransigent than they really wish to be. It has induced Riza Nur Bey in various outbursts to defend his country's interests, for Riza Nur ever ardently voices the more chauvinistic opinion of Ankara's new assembly.

Welcome Discussion.
The allies say they will permit free discussion of the still disputed points in meetings of the full commissions, but that so much time has passed in the sub-commission debates that it has become imperative to sum up the work and submit the document in as complete a form as possible.

These assurances of the allies, put forth to lessen the tension, probably influenced Riza Nur Bey to adopt a more conciliatory attitude today on the question of Turkey's sanitary arrangements. An international board has heretofore supervised health conditions at Turkish ports, especially with relation to quarantine.

White House Waiting for Reply to Secretary
Hughes' Proposals—No Time Limit Set.

WASHINGTON OPPOSED TO SEIZURE OF RUHR

Hughes Proposed That Reparations Problem Be Considered by Commission of Financiers.

Washington, January 8.—American proposals for an inquiry into the German reparations problem by a commission of financiers have been transmitted to Paris but still await definite French reaction to the plan, although a preliminary answer has been received. No time limit was involved in the suggestions as put forward by Secretary Hughes, it was said authoritatively today. It was made clear that the outline of American thought on the question has been sent to Paris through official channels prior to the premier's meeting January 2.

Secretary Hughes did not trust entirely to the informal method of suggestion in his speech at New Haven when he discussed the plan. Although it was not indicated today in what way the French government had been advised officially of the American views, it was assumed that Ambassador Jusserand was given a very definite statement for that purpose, and that this was amplified in later conversations.

There has been ample evidence, American officials hold, that the suggestion was well received in some quarters abroad. What is lacking apparently, is a clear understanding of the French position with respect to the plan and hope has not been abandoned in Washington that it may yet prove a means of escape for the allied governments from the consequences which it is believed here must flow from drastic measures of torbure reparations collections.

The French Reply.
The French reply already received is not regarded here as conclusive. It leaves the way open to ultimate acceptance of Mr. Hughes' suggestion, it was indicated, although so far as can be learned, officials in Washington are in the dark as to whether France will turn to the alternative of economic studies.

Since Mr. Hughes' speech, no authorized spokesman has commented on the probable effect of actual seizures in the Ruhr region as planned by the French. Yet there is no mystery about the view in Washington as to what probably will follow, for the secretary frankly stated in his New Haven address what those views were. He pointed out that economic authorities held that forcible measures "will not produce reparations payments but might tend to destroy the basis of those payments which must be found in economic reconstruction."

The view of the Washington government on this point has not changed nor is it likely to change for very definite proof that the French plan will produce reparations payments without precipitating collapse in Germany. That viewpoint as well as the proposal that international financiers be called in was fully presented to all the allied powers before the meeting of the premier in Paris.

Withdrawal of Troops.
Despite action of the senate in the resolution expressing the opinion that American troops should be withdrawn from the Rhine, there is official sup-

Few women in America are qualified to write as authoritatively and deftly on the difficult subject of etiquette and entertaining as Julia Hoyt, stage and movie star—in private life Mrs. Lydig Hoyt, a leader of society in New York, Washington, Newport, Southampton, and several capitals of Europe.

Her articles, refreshing in their common sense, will appeal to every woman who entertains and is entertained. They deal with neither the obvious rudiments of "table manners," nor the ultra-refined niceties of royal court etiquette. What they do tell is—port for the view that this course would involve possibilities of misunderstanding which it would be inadvisable to risk. The withdrawal, in any case, is held, could not add much weight to the American views as to the unwisdom of the course that is to be pursued in the crisis.

American troops are wanted on the Rhine by each of the allied nations and by Germany. It was said tonight in the case of such nations, however, the reason for seeking their retention in Germany is different. To order the withdrawal, it was pointed out, might be taken as implying a complete endorsement or repudiation of various courses of thought in Europe with which the troops would not be recalled to present.

It was also indicated that the United States government would make no protest against passage of French troops through the American zone en route to the Ruhr. Lack of protest in that event, however, should not be construed as acquiescence in the French program. It was added, nor would the French government so interpret it. The views of the American government were fully known and it was pointed out, it was indicated, as there was no prospect that it could sway French determination to proceed.

and customs officials who will take over the control, production and distribution of coal until Germany pays her war debt to the allies.

Despite the secrecy, several orders for troop movements have leaked out. The Thirtieth Dragoon regiment, stationed at Mehlum, has been ordered to be ready to move into the Ruhr. On Wednesday one regiment of infantry, one regiment of artillery are to leave their station at Epinal. A detachment of marine engineers has been ordered to leave London and report at Paris for instructions.

Rich Industrial Area.
The Ruhr basin, upon which France has fixed her eyes as a last resort to extract reparations payments from Germany, is the richest industrial area in the world, and the industrial heart of Germany.

Statistics prepared by mining experts indicate that the coal deposits alone underlie an area of 1,900 square miles and that the total amount of coal in the territory would reach the enormous total of nearly 55,000,000,000 tons. In addition, it is estimated that the basin contains more than four billion tons of lignite.

The incomparable richness of the region is shown by the fact that there are operating in the Ruhr 87 big corporations with a total capital of 2,500,000,000 gold marks, which includes many of the Stinnes and Thyssen industrial concerns.

NEW IS SUGGESTED FOR THE CABINET

Mr. Harding is also said to favor the interior portfolio going to some representative of the western states due to the affairs of the office being more concerned with the sections of the country. His tender of the office to Secretary Hoover, of the department of commerce, who preferred his present post, was prompted by a desire to remedy that situation, said Mr. Hoover, through his transfer would make room for Senator New more fittingly, it is claimed.

While the Indiana transfer is considered the most probable, success to Mr. Fall, the name of other prominent party men have been brought forward. Foremost among these is Chairman John Hays, who is expected to be the congressional fact-finding commission. Mr. Hammond was seriously considered for secretary of the interior and secretary of commerce at the time President Harding was forming his cabinet. His experience at a mining engineer and geologist and his thorough knowledge of western conditions peculiarly fitted him for the place, his friends declare.

In the event of his appointment, it was suggested today that Clark Howell, of Atlanta, also a member of the coal commission, would be elevated to the chairmanship of the fact-finding commission.

Just how far the postoffice department figures in the present cabinet situation is a matter undetermined by observers. In this connection it is recalled that the time-former Postmaster General Hays resigned to the effect that Postmaster General Hays gave the place with the next standing he was to step aside next March in favor of Senator New.

Transfers Suggested.
The suggestion has since been made that the president may transfer Mr. Work to the interior department and give Senator New the postoffice department, a position more suited to his disposition, it is asserted. Strength added to the report because of Mr. Work's residence in Colorado, which falls in line with Harding's desire to fill the interior vacancy with a western man. Some are of the opinion that Mr. Work will retire out and out at an early date following next March.

The campaign on to have Representative Mondell, of Wyoming, floor leader of the house, named as Mr. Fall's successor, has fallen short, it was said today, although it was added he is not considered out of the running. The name of Representative Mondell, who was defeated in his race for the senate in November, was brought forward by party strategists immediately after the Fall resignation was announced with the view of avoiding a fight over the floor leadership in the next congress.

Mr. Burrus, superintendent of the Cotton States Fertilizer company, is in a critical condition at a local hospital as the result of an accidental shooting tonight. Mrs. T. A. Fuss, in whose home he was boarding, playfully pointed a pistol that had not been loaded at Burrus in the five years, at him and snapped it. The bullet entered his abdomen.

PUT ORPHAN GIRLS IN CHAINS AT HOME

Macoon, Ga., January 8.—(Special.) To quell what he termed an "incipient rebellion" among the elder girls at the South Georgia Conference Orphan's Home of the Methodist church, Rev. J. D. Smith, superintendent of the institution, today passed three girls in chains and swore out warrants for four boys charging malicious mischief.

The girls are Maria, Ella Reynolds, 18; Victoria Davis, 18, and Pearl Lewis, a student of Lanier High school, 16.

Held in the P. M. county jail on the charge of malicious mischief are J. D. Smith and Ray Robinson, former charges at the orphanage. Officers are looking for Howard Black, another similar war criminal.

The specific charge against them is that they were trespassing on the grounds of the orphanage Sunday night without authority and that they broke five panes in one of the buildings.

Rev. Mr. Smith tonight said that he had resorted to the use of the chains because he had been unable to manage the girls otherwise. Against his orders, and without the consent of the matron of their department, they were with the four boys against the orphanage building Sunday night, he said. A light weight chain was employed.

ROME JUDGE CREATES SENSATION BY CHARGE

Rome, Ga., January 8.—(Special.) Delivering his usual anti-whisky, anti-gambling and anti-speeding charge to the grand jury in Floyd superior court this morning, Judge Moses C. Wright included some sensational statements in regard to the course he intends to pursue hereafter in the punishment of persons convicted by his court on any of these three charges.

Judge Wright declared that he will not encourage the unfairness and injustice of punishing offenders who are poor or of no influence by putting penalties on negro crop shooters which rich or influential gamblers are not arrested. Bridge-whist players, poor players of high standing who play cards with a "rolling limit," and auto owners who violate the speed laws, he said, are the ones he is after.

He gave notice that any person convicted of any of the three charges the speed laws will get a fine or a jail sentence instead of a fine and stated that notice of this having been given the speeders can govern themselves accordingly.

NEW TREASURY NOTE OFFERING NOW ANNOUNCED

Washington, January 8.—The treasury tonight announced a new offering of 4 1/2 per cent treasury notes, dated January 15, and maturing December 15, 1937. The issue is for about $300,000,000 with the right reserved to issue additional securities of the same kind.

The issue is to be sold by competitive bids or war savings certificates are tendered in payment or exchange. About $200,000,000 of the notes will be sold for redemption on December 15 and the balance, according to treasury figures, and something like $400,000,000 of the 1918 issue of war savings stamps also have not been presented for redemption. Interest stopped December 15 on the called Victory notes and January 1 on the war savings stamps.

JAMES T. BEATON DIES IN WAYCROSS
Waycross, Ga., January 8.—(Special.) James T. Beaton, aged 71 years, died at his residence on St. Andrews street last night after an illness of several weeks.

The deceased is the father of former Mayor Scott T. Beaton, of Waycross.

Mr. Beaton is survived by his wife and son and one brother, C. H. Beaton, of Schattsville. The funeral services will be held this afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Central Baptist church, Rev. T. T. Davis officiating. The pallbearers were J. T. McGee, R. S. Agee, W. H. Jackson, R. E. Snow, C. H. Lowther and B. C. Jones. Interment was in Lott cemetery.

AMERICAN B. Y. P. U. INSTALLS OFFICERS
Americus, Ga., January 8.—The Senior B. Y. P. U. of the First Baptist church installed officers at the meeting during the evening year Sunday night. A large congregation attended the installation ceremonies.

Officers installed were: W. Joe Smith, president; Miss Hilda Johnson, corresponding secretary; Miss Minnie McDaniel, secretary; Miss Lillian McDaniel, Luther Ivey, Miss Lillian Sanborn and Tye Gordon Walters, group leaders; Raymond Parsons, quiz leader; Miss Agnes Gatewood, librarian; Mrs. R. E. Snow, chorist; Miss Julia Hines, missionary leader.

ACCIDENTALLY SHOT WITH OLD REVOLVER
Macoon, Ga., January 9.—Perry Burrus, superintendent of the Cotton States Fertilizer company, is in a critical condition at a local hospital as the result of an accidental shooting tonight. Mrs. T. ## ORESSA ANDERSON PAID HIGH HONOR BY GIRL SCOUTS

New York, January 8.—National headquarters of the Girl Scouts of America today announced that Oressa Anderson, heroine of the Avon fire, which last summer made 1,500 persons homeless at Rockaway beach, has been chosen as the person who "performed the most notable act of heroism in New York during the year 1922."

Miss Anderson, who is 15, will be awarded the gold medal of the Safety Institute of America, and the bronze cross, the highest life saving honor of the Girl Scouts.

Affidavits presented to Police Commissioner Driscoll declared that Miss Anderson drove only in a bathing suit, entered two burning bungalows during the fire and rescued seven persons.

Butts County School System in Excellent Financial Condition
Jackson, Ga., January 8.—(Special.)—According to an announcement made by the State Department of Education, which has apportioned the state school funds for the year 1923, Butts county will receive $29,353.76. This is approximately the same amount as last year.

The state fund is supplemented by a county-wide levy of five mills. The Butts county school system is in splendid financial condition, and the county having been in full in full to date, and enough funds on hand to complete the full term.

CARLOAD OF CATTLE SHIPPED BY SUMTER

Americus, Ga., January 8.—(Special.)—Sumter cattle raisers shipped a carload of cattle to the North Carolina butchers. The same was arranged by George O. Marshall, county farm demonstration agent, and conducted along the regular plan.

Forty head, mostly cows, and all of Holstein or Jersey stock, constituted the shipment. The cows averaged in weight around 700 pounds, and the car was the round trip paid for them.

Cattle raising continues to develop satisfactorily in Sumter county, and the Marshall county all the cattle sales regularly within the next year.

PLAN DEEP PROBE OF TWO MURDERS

Father to Take Stand.
J. L. Daniel, father of Watt, and himself a victim of the roadhouse attack, is expected to take the witness stand tomorrow. The elder Daniel started his testimony Saturday afternoon but did not finish. He told of being taken into the woods by members of the mob and flogged and of the disappearance of his son at the same time, but apparently had much more to tell.

In addition to Mr. Daniel the list of witnesses includes his granddaughter, Thelma Dade, 15-year-old daughter of Mayor Dade, of Mer Rouge, Sidney White and "Nip" Eckols, who were in the automobile from which Watt Daniel was taken, and several other men who were halted by the masked band at the time of the kidnapping.

Whether any of them will testify as to the identity of the members of the hooded band cannot be foretold. Thus far none of the witnesses has been able to name members of the mob.

T. Semmes Wamsley, assistant to Attorney General A. V. Coo, was named today as spokesman for the state's legal forces. His first interview with newspaper men was confined to an announcement of the list of prospective witnesses for tomorrow. He denied several rumors of a sensational nature.

In addition to the testimony to be given by Daniel and his granddaughter and the two men who were in the automobile with Watt Daniel, much interest is attached to the prospective testimony of C. C. "To" Davenport, a Mer Rouge citizen. Davenport was one of five men captured and taken into the woods by the kidnapers and who, according to other witnesses, were questioned as to an attempt made to assassinate Dr. B. McKinn, former mayor of Mer Rouge and now under bond, using action on an affidavit which charged murder in connection with the death of Daniel and Richards. W. C. Anderson, one of the first witnesses, declared he was flogged until he was numb when he denied any knowledge of the attempt on Dr. McKinn.

Lists of foreign medical experts drawn by the league of nations and the International Hygiene Association, of which M. Barrere is president and whose headquarters is in Paris.

Session of Commission.
M. Barrere will return from Paris tomorrow, and a session of the G. H. commission dealing with minorities will be held in the afternoon.

An agreement on all points has been reached except as relates to amnesty, the exemption of Christians from military service, and an Armenian national home. The uncertainty as to whether the Near Eastern conference will succeed or collapse is causing a steady exodus of Greeks, Armenians and others from Constantinople, according to the allied reports today. Artisans and trades people are abandoning their work and all their little fortunes to flee before the possible break comes and hostilities are renewed.

Although it is true that General Harrington is preparing for the evacuation of the British troops, in view of contemplated peace, The Associated Press is informed that the British forces will remain in Constantinople peace is actually made. The report that the British are concentrating at Gallipoli, in order to hold the straits, leaving the French and Italians in Constantinople, is declared to be erroneous.

SITUATION TENSE ON PRIMARY EVE

pers by some of the most prominent women of Savannah. Yesterday evening the "Gleaner," a weekly paper, was distributed in many sections of the city in the interest of the Stewart faction.

Negro Churches Posted.
The sensation of the day was the discovery that somebody had posted every negro church and lodge building in Savannah, more than fifty of such buildings, with "warnings," advising the churches to be on their guard against the cross of the K. K. and the legend, "This is a white man's fight—keep out." Letters were received of similar import by negro leaders. Negro buildings were guarded most of last night by Seabrook people.

At rallies tonight Colonel A. R. Lawton, Judges Adams, Seabrook and Lovett presented the Seabrook case from their standpoint. That the executive committee had declined to give hearing to claims of fraud; that the superior court had failed to find law to give it jurisdiction, insisting that local election laws—retiring the rights of the voters to ballot for whom they please are unconstitutional, and that there are times when "political revolution, or rebellion, is not only justified, but proper."

The interest and activity of the Seabrook faction is at fever heat, and claims are freely made that he will win by 1,500 to 2,000 votes cast tomorrow. The weather indications are for a fine day, and history of one sort or another will be made in Savannah politics.

Stewart Faction Active.
The Stewart side has been also exerting powerful activity. They have charged that the petition upon which it was hoped to make Judge Seabrook a candidate legally was padded, full of duplicate names, of names of non-residents, persons who had requested withdrawal of their subscription, of names signed by others than the ostensible petitioners, and other irregularities.

The clerk of council, with the registrars and assistants, worked from Wednesday through last night, day and night, checking the lists, and got out as far as "M." when it was announced that sufficient names had been found with causes for striking them to reduce the list below the requisite one-third of the registration.

The Stewart forces will meet early tomorrow to discuss the plan for the election, and the claim is made that the 7,000 names will be reduced to 4,000.

At a great mass meeting held at the Auditorium tonight the final Stewart rally was held and the "bolters" denounced; independence and all its menaces was emphasized; it was urged that the primary system must be supported if the primary system is to remain in effect, and denials were made of the charges brought by the Seabrook followers.

The Stewart forces will meet early tomorrow to march to the polls, and that faction claims that it will win hands down.

In the event of a decision by ballot either way, it is said to be practically certain that the courts will have to decide later who shall be mayor of Savannah finally.

PROMISES BROKEN, SAYS SIXTH WARD

cause they will not get an auditorium at the Williams street school, and now the architect has taken a knife and cut off the top story of the Calhoun's blue-print. The people of the sixth ward, who voted almost unanimously for school bonds, there being only 12 votes against it, are given an opportunity to repudiate the school bonds, under the promises made by bond propagandists, some of whom are on this board, are kept.

"I know that the voters of the sixth ward will not let the school bond issue be at least 5 to 1. My suggestion is that the board of education finish all elementary schools and then ask the people for a special high school bond issue. Under the old plan the money from the sale of old school property to build new high schools. If you do not finish the grammar schools, mark my words, the people will not tolerate a bond issue for the school system."

Beyond this formal exchange of views little was accomplished at today's brief session which was adjourned over until Wednesday. At that time a general discussion of the whole situation will be begun and the British mission is expected to present additional data with reference to the general statement submitted today by the British chancellor.

President Harding was advised late today of the progress of the negotiations. Secretary Mellon and Senator Snoot, republican, Utah, another member of the American commission, spending half an hour with him, under the light of the debt funding law all negotiations entered into by the commission are subject to executive approval and it is understood that Mr. Harding plans to keep in close touch with the situation as it develops around the conference table in the treasury.

All members of both of the commissions were present at the opening session. Before hand the American general school system, because they are fed up with this one and the most active workers for school bonds are the ones most disappointed."

"I heard Professor Satton tell the people that the only way to get a new auditorium and additional school facilities was to vote for this bond issue."

Says Money Is Short.
Commissioner McCauley, in defending the action of the board in delaying the work on the Ivy-Calhoun school and others, declared the school building program called for an expenditure of approximately $6,500,000, while the board had only little more than $4,000,000 with which to pay for the new school plants.

"I'd like to ask 'commissioner York a question," asserted Mr. McCauley, at the conclusion of the latter's address. "Tell me for whom are the schools of Atlanta being erected if it isn't for the people. We are doing the best we can with our limited finances, and it is the intention of the board to carry out every one of its promises just as soon as the money for doing so is available. If the people of Atlanta do not wish to vote for another bond issue, then they will not have an adequate school system. It is left entirely in their hands."

More than two hours was spent by the board in debating the Ivy-Calhoun school question, and the needs of the Goldenrod school, which was also represented by a large delegation of patrons and members of the Parent-Teacher association. The board finally voted to refer the matter to the finance committee and promised to take action on the matter within the next few days.

Finance Committee.
Announcement was made by W. W. Gaines, president of the board, of the appointment of a temporary finance committee, consisting of the following: W. L. McCauley, chairman; Claude Trussell, J. H. Hancock, Mrs. Z. B. Peterson, Hoke Blair and A. C. McNeill. Appointment of the finance committee will be made as soon as the new rules and regulations of the board are adopted, it was stated.

beliefs and standards of his neighbor as he wants his own respected. Let this association encourage friendly helpfulness each for all political affiliations, of all degrees of wealth and shades of color, devote their best efforts to helping the other fellow. Let us seek to understand, to sympathize with and to encourage the other man, forgetting whether he goes to the same church or no, or whether he goes to any church at all; not asking for whom he voted, or if he voted for anyone; not probing his beliefs, his faiths or his past mistakes. Let us extend to him the same friendship and help which every decent man possesses and help him forward in life, simply and solely because he is a fellow-Georgian.

If we do all this, the year 1923 will see the end of factionalism, it will see the death of intolerance, it will witness the passing of mob-rule, of outrage and injustice. It will see a new era of "peace on earth, good will toward men." It will see mercy replacing justice. It will see crime, poverty and sin fade from Georgia. It will see the coming of the millennium and the fruition of all dreams of idealists of all hopes of dreamers.

Maybe it is too much to ask. But, at any rate, let's try it. Politically we have peace within our borders. Prosperity's sun is rising fast from the clouds of depression. Work is plentiful, crops abundant, all nature smiles. Every factor for heaven on earth, God-given, is auspicious. And only here and there, man is vile. It is time he shed his viciousness and became attuned to the sunshine of a glorious year in this glorious state of ours.

The idea so adequately expressed above, was furnished by Guyt McClenon, Georgia's secretary of state. Let us make him grand vizier, or something, in this nebulous association for good. He's qualified, already.

to women, were to the effect that those accused had turned certain activities of the club to their own personal advantage. For the most part, the charges were of a petty nature, but it was possible to arrange a graduated rate of interest beginning at a figure below 4 1/4 per cent, but increasing periodically beyond that so that the debt payments would run down comfortably with the minimum fixed by congress.

Attention also was called that all principal payments could be deferred until the end of the 25-year period, but it was explained that this was not the usual method in liquidating a debt of this proportion; that an annual payment plan was customary. In this situation it was indicated that a chief problem before the commissions was a determination of how much Great Britain should be able to pay annually without seriously disturbing trade relations between the two countries and imposing too great a strain upon the British treasury and people.

SPREAD OF "FLU" CAUSES ENORMOUS DEMAND FOR TURPEDINE REMEDIES

LOCAL DRUGGISTS RUSHED TO FILL ORDERS FOR TURPEDINE PRODUCTS

Reports from all sections where influenza is epidemic indicate that this old enemy to health has met a powerful foe in Dunwoody's Turpedine Remedies.

People are flocking to the drug stores in such numbers to obtain Turpedine Ointment, Turpedine Spray and other Turpedine products which have proved to be so efficient in treating influenza, that the laboratories of the Turpedine Products Company also are taxed to the utmost and are working overtime that the trade may be fully supplied.

The Turpedine remedies contain, besides other remedial agents, turpentine and iodine in a greater percentage than can be had in any other combination. Their efficiency in treating influenza is fully borne out by actual practice.

Turpedine Ointment applied to the nostrils guards the air passages from infection by disease germs.

Turpedine Spray applied to the throat and tonsils holds up the infection if it has already gotten a foothold.

Turpedine Cough Syrup loosens the phlegm, clears the throat and bronchial tubes and hastens recovery from coughs and colds.

Pure Turpedine often relieves the most severe case of sore throat or tonsillitis in a very short time.

Turpedine Emulsion builds up the system and increases its resistance to disease. It aids digestion, enriches the blood and regulates the functioning of the vital organs.

If you have fever and have to go to bed, call your doctor. But prompt application of the Turpedine remedies will simplify matters and may save you from serious illness.

All the Turpedine remedies may be obtained from any druggist. —(adv.)

COX IS SUGGESTED FOR POLICE CHIEF

Sims' Declaration for Economy Makes Acceptance Improbable. Beavers and Poole to Be Tried.

Possibility that Major Charles H. Cox, widely known veteran of the world war and commander of the Atlanta battalion of the national guard, will be tendered the position as chief of police provided the salary of the office is increased, was the leading development Monday in the movement to organize the local police department.

Jesse W. Armistead, chairman of the police committee of council instructed that Major Cox was being considered for the place, but that nothing definite had been accomplished by the committee in the direction of appointing a successor to Chief James L. Beavers. That the matter will have assumed a more definite status by next Thursday evening, when the committee is scheduled to hold its first meeting, was the expression of members.

Chairman Armistead let it be known Monday that he desired a conference with Major Cox, and this was construed in city hall circles as an indication that the latter is being strongly considered.

No Raises Probable. Mayor Sims in discussing the additional $450,000 deficit discovered Saturday in the city's exchequer, declared the present administration would have to exercise the most careful economy in maintaining the various departments of the city and that no salary increases or additional jobs could possibly be considered during the next year, or perhaps two.

In its recommendations to the finance committee of council, the old board of police commissioners Monday urged that an additional 50 men be provided for the police department, but in view of the outstanding indebtedness of the municipal government at present, councilman leaders, as well as the mayor, expressed the opinion that this recommendation can not be granted.

This fact is also being considered by the police committee with regard to increasing the salary of the chief of police, several persons under consideration for the position declaring they would not accept the office unless the salary was substantially increased. The present salary of the chief of police is $275 a month.

To Call Beavers On Carpet.

Another unconfirmed rumor prevalent in city hall circles Monday was that the police committee, within the next week would institute charges of inefficiency against both Chief Beavers and Detective Chief Lamar Poole.

While both Chief Beavers and Chief Poole refused to comment on the possible action of the committee in arranging them on charges of inefficiency it was a certainty that both would employ counsel and wage a fight for their positions. It was rumored that Chief Beavers will be represented by Attorney James L. Key, former mayor, and that Chief Poole has retained Attorney Robert T. Jones to represent him.

Both Councilman J. A. Beall and Councilman Fred C. Woodall, members of the police committee, while refusing to divulge the nature of the procedure intended on the part of the committee, asserted that "important things would likely materialize at the session."

Second Trial Is Begun In Walraven's $100,000 Suit for Loss of Arms

The second trial of the damage suit against the Georgia Railway and Power company by Oliff Walraven, 14 years old, who is asking $100,000 for the loss of both arms, which, it is claimed, were cut off at South Pryor street and Buena Vista avenue January 11, 1921, was begun before Judge George L. Bell in the Fulton superior court Monday.

The first trial last March resulted in a jury returning a verdict in favor of the youth for $100,000, the full amount sued for.

The suit is brought through the boy's mother, Mrs. W. D. Aiken, as next friend. They are represented by the law firm of Hewlett & Dennis.

WOMEN ARE PLANNING EQUAL RIGHTS FIGHT

Washington, January 8.—A nationwide campaign for equal rights for women, supervised by leaders of the national woman's party, has been inaugurated by that organization. It was announced here, and soon will swing into action in 41 states. Equal rights bills have been drafted, it was said today, for introduction at sessions of the state legislative bodies this year.

States in which the woman's party leaders will center their efforts include Alabama, Arkansas, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and West Virginia.

Current expenses for operating the public schools of New Jersey during the year 1921-1922 amounted to $12,856,196.63.

Sleuths Promise Medical Alcohol Thieves' Arrest

200 Gallons Drained From Dissecting Specimens for Booze, Agents Find.

Instead of 100 gallons of grain alcohol being drained off corpses preserved for experimental purposes at a local medical institution, the amount was 200 gallons, according to statements by federal prohibition agents Monday, and the "gang" that "pulled the job" will be rounded up in a few days, they promised.

The fluid stolen, according to prohibition agents, was without doubt manufactured in a "bootleg" and marketed in Atlanta. Labels and caps used in disguising the alcohol into what appeared to be "bottled in bond," "Highland Queen" and other popular brands are now in the hands of agents of the government.

Approximately 2,000 "short quarts" of "bootleg" to appear like genuine smuggled goods could have been made from the amount of alcohol stolen, it was estimated by federal agents.

At the office of Federal Prohibition Director Fred Dismuke Monday it was pointed out that the bootlegger, with the advantage of labels, government revenue stamps and caps, could disguise the stolen preservative so that only an expert could detect that it was not "Scotch" or some other genuine article.

According to the agents, investigation so far has revealed that the bootleggers took the alcohol and mixed it with coloring matter, flavored to imitate the brand decided upon, and added water; then the product was bottled.

The product, it is stated, was marketed in empty bottles which had formerly contained the genuine article. Supplies of counterfeit revenue stamps and labels are known to be available to dealers in illicit liquors, and the evidence being collected in this case by the federal agents leads to the conclusion that the numerous persons were completely deceived by the clever imitations.

WHISKY RUNNER WRECKS MACHINE AND IS CAPTURED

While attempting to evade prohibition agents, the driver of an automobile containing a whisky running machine over in Dawson county Saturday afternoon, pinning himself beneath it and causing delay which brought the closely pursuing officers up in time to arrest him, confiscate the machine and run down and arrest one of three companions who were thrown from the car and who ran into the woods.

Agents Dismuke and Smith were conducting the chase. One machine containing illicit liquor was abandoned near Canton, Ga., the driver escaping. The two machines and 115 gallons of whisky were confiscated.

NAVY ROLL OF HONOR INCLUDES GEORGIANS

Two "goats" who were enlisted through the Atlanta recruiting station hold places on the honor roll at the naval training station, Hampton Roads, Va., according to a bulletin from the chief of the bureau of navigation, received at the local recruiting station Monday.

Percy Henches Hughes, a son of Mrs. Emma Hughes, 1008 Broad street, Augusta, Ga., is third on the honor roll, ranking as seaman second class. Talmadge D. Bland, son of Mrs. Florence Bland, 45 Albany avenue, Waycross, Ga., holds fourth place, ranking as apprentice seaman.

Sodium Nitrate Sale.

Twenty-eight thousand tons of sodium nitrate is offered for sale by the war department of the United States in lots of 100 tons or more, it was announced Monday. Sealed bids on this product will be received at room 808, Army building, 39 Whitehall street, New York City, not later than January 30. The sodium nitrate offered for sale is at the Old Hickory plant at Nashville, Tenn., where prospective purchasers may inspect it, it was stated.

"The Passing Show" Proves Best Amusement in Years

"The Passing Show" came to town last night. It opened at the Atlanta theater. And it's a good show.

It's a whole of a good show. Adjectives fail miserably in any attempt to describe just how good a show it is. This reviewer has sat idle before this inadequate typewriter and waited patiently for ten minutes for inspiration to divulge a way to properly express his thanks for the enjoyment Mr. Shubert sent to Atlanta all wrapped up in this Winter Garden revue of his. And the typewriter shirks its duty and brings forth no really worthy phrases to deck the occasion.

What does it take to make the kind of entertainment that delighted, dazzled and enraptured that big crowd at the theater last night?

Music? It's all there. All the way from grand operatic to peppy jazz tunes. Song and dance music galore. Orchestration that weaves its spell over the listeners and tunes their receptivity for the theatrical treat that is provided.

grace a concert stage, to a Hebrew comedian whose burlesque vocabulary brings a pain in the ribs and a tear to the eye with laughter.

It's a good show. Dancers? Dancers whose work "stopped the show" time and time again. Dancers who whirl and prance their ways into a niche of local popularity that will last for many a long day. A girl and a boy who bow to the applause until they can barely stand.

It's a good show. Costumes? Gorgeous, glittering triumphs that artistically blend into a kaleidoscopic whole. Dresses that draw gasps of admiration from men and women alike. And some feminine members of the cast whose wardrobe is enhanced to heavenly perfection by its scantiness.

It's a good show. And, first, last and all the time, girls! Maybe youth should hesitate to say that never before has such a beautiful collection of girls been gathered together and brought to the Atlanta stage at one and the same time. As far as personal memory extends, over a period of a dozen years, this galaxy of female pulchritude has never before been equaled. Girls in squads, in platoons, in regiments. And not one who isn't delightfully easy to gaze upon. Do you ever remember seeing a show where a judicious modicum of distance didn't lend enchantment to the view? Well, it's not true in this case. From the third row from the front, every girl in the bunch was prettier than she could possibly have been in the fourth, or other even more unfortunate rows. And it was self-evident that they looked even prettier from the second row, and from the first—when—imagination bulks!

It's a good show. The program lists two acts and twenty-six scenes. It gives names of many performers. But the impression that remains is simply of a riot of fun and music and dancing and lovely women. Some few names stick out as leaders in the enjoyment. There was Sam Howard, a comedian who started well and grew better as the night wore on. Then Jack Rice, who played opposite to Howard. And Will Philbrick, who did many things well, but none better than his "drunk" in the Brown Derby skit.

There were those aforementioned dancers, Jack Dempsey and Margaret Wood, both wonders of terpsichore, and Miss Wood a vision of loveliness that was not stinted—to the sad derangement of many male hearts. Helen Renstrom is the statuesque prima donna. Alexandria Dagmar is the contralto and a comedienne of generous parts. And there were many, many others, all good.

And never forget the plastic face of Francis Mahoney, the waiter. Or that Rigoletto quartette. Or the camel scene. Or a thousand and one other features.

It's a good show.

And, again remember: the beauty, the youth, the freshness and charm of the girls. Remember? How the bill can any man forget?

RALPH T. JONES.

"Wedding Bells" Delight Forsyth First Nighters

A bit of laughter, considerable wit, innumerable funny situations and Walter Marshall in the role of a budding young poet, feature the thoroughly enjoyable presentation of the Forsyth players this week under the title of "Wedding Bells."

Of course Belle Bennett, Forsyth players' star, was beautiful and charming, and gown in half a dozen wonderful French creations, but that is no more than was expected. John Little, leading man, was also in the center of most every scene.

Mary Tarry, ingenue, had her first "real" part since her return to Atlanta several weeks ago. She received several bursts of applause. Alice Baker was good, but she always is. However, Atlanta's voiced her a little more appreciation than usual.

Forbes Gets Lauch.

As for Gus Forbes, those of us who sit there every Monday night have become so accustomed to enjoying him that we would have been real disappointed if he hadn't produced. However, when memory goes back to the show Gus still brings a grin.

The play is all about the wedding of one Reginald Carter (Mr. Little). It is the eve of his wedding to Marcia Hunter (Miss Tarry). He's planning a farewell bachelor dinner when Rosalie, being the altogether charming Miss Bennett, appears on the scene. It appears, after a few moments' conversation, that she has married him and left him some years before.

Well, you know how it is, or would be. Still being in love with Rosalie, but believing that she has not only divorced him, but under the impression that she has married while in Paris, the poor fellow has an unhappy time ahead of him. And these two, Miss Bennett and Mr. Little, produce real humor, as well as a touch here and there of pathos.

Every now and then between cocktail Gus cracks a dry joke, aided by Jackson, the valet of Reggie, admirably impersonated by Robert W. Smiley. In fact, Mr. Smiley deserves further mention. This is the first real opportunity he has had while a member of the Forsyth Players, to demonstrate his ability. And he was a distinct feature of the show.

Miss Bennett's gowns were all new and quite fetching. For an afternoon call, for traveling and for dinner, she was dressed as most women would like to be.

"Wedding Bells" is a wholesome, clean comedy and is guaranteed to please even the most fastidious, for the performance of the Forsyth Players is excellent. It will be presented every evening this week and at matinees on Thursday, Saturday and Sunday. WALTER CHAMBERS.

Atlanta Frolics Beauties Win Success Opening Show of Week at Loew's Grand

POPE IS ELECTED COLONEL OF GUARD

Adjutant General Wins Command of 122d Over Cox, of Atlanta, and Whitaker, of Macon.

Macon, Ga., January 8.—(Special.) Adjutant General L. C. Pope, of Dublin, was elected colonel of the 122d Georgia infantry today in an election in which the sixty officers of the regiment participated.

Arriving in Macon at 11:25 o'clock tonight, General Pope was notified of his election. He immediately announced that headquarters of the regiment will be retained in Macon.

General Pope said he will continue to occupy the position of adjutant general for the present, but will be the first time in the history of the state, as far as local military officers recall, of a man holding two titles, one of them an adjutant general of the state.

General Pope will issue orders today that a lieutenant colonel of the regiment, which position he held until last night, be elected on January 20. It is probable that he will be succeeded by one of the men who posed him in the election, Major Felt A. Whitaker, of Macon, or Major Charles H. Cox, of Atlanta.

The election returns were compiled tonight by Major Ben J. Fowler, judge advocate, and Major Lieutenant Parks Hunter, of the quartermaster staff of the regiment. Ballots had been mailed in from all regimental officers and were opened by the election board late today. General Pope had a substantial lead over his opponents, it was said.

The new colonel succeeds General H. D. Russell, who was elevated from commanding officer of the Georgia infantry to the command of the Georgia and South Carolina troops, in a recent election. On the staff of the regiment are Major Usher T. Winslett, of Macon, machine gun officer; Captain Miller G. White, of Macon, adjutant; and Lieutenant Ben Watkins, planning officer.

M'CORMICK SUFFERS APPENDICITIS ATTACK

Paris, January 8.—Harold F. McCormick, of Chicago, was apparently on the road to recovery today after an urgent operation for acute appendicitis performed at his home here last night. Mr. McCormick was stricken while attending a theater Saturday night. He was taken home immediately, specialists were summoned and an operating room was set up in his home.

It was stated this afternoon that Mr. McCormick is entirely out of danger, but that he will be unable to return to the United States for probably three weeks. He had planned to sail with his wife, Ganna Walska.

Mae Marsh, leading an all-star cast in the William Christy Cabanne production, "Till We Meet Again," plays the role of a girl who is loved by a crook and an aristocrat. Her heart goes out to each of them. She is stirred with sympathy for the crook who befriended her and stood ready to share his last cent with her at a time when she was friendless, homeless and frightened. And the aristocrat had risked his honor and reputation in serving her. Not until the final scene does the story unfold the phases of his romance, and not until then does the story bring out its title, "Till We Meet Again," in a smashing

According to the preponderance of comment among the audiences as they left the Grand theater, yesterday, "The Constitution Frolics of 1923," achieved every whit of the success that their closest friends hoped for them.

And, truly, when every factor is taken into consideration, it is a remarkable production that Mr. and Mrs. Billy Baskette, and the thirty-odd Atlanta boys and girls, have put on. They have only had ten days for rehearsals. Every one of the performers is, in the strictest sense of the word, an amateur.

(At The Grand.)

In addition to "The Atlanta Constitution Frolics of 1923," which is the outstanding feature of the program at Loew's Grand Theatre for the first half of the week, the regular vaudeville bill of five acts offers excellent entertainment. The headliner of this show is Will Smith, musical comedy star and vaudeville favorite, assisted by Rosalind May and company in the musical oddity in two scenes "Now and Then." The action of the piece takes place in a French cafe. Mr. Smith imitates an idiotic soused clubman, a good-natured drunk, a character he plays to perfection and one entirely devoid of suggestiveness or unreferential. The balance of the company appear to good advantage as cabaret artists in the cafe. The act is the hit of the show.

Other offerings are Wilson and McAvoy in "Regular Pals," a novel and pleasing sketch; Eddie Tanner and the Palmer Sisters in a novelty playlet in two scenes, "When We Grow Up;" Simms and Winne, introducing modern and old-time songs, and the Three Walters, amusing eccentric symphonists.

The feature of the screen program is John Gilbert in "Honor First."

(At The Howard.)

In "Kick In," a new Paramount picture showing at the Howard theater, George Fitzmaurice has made a picture of extraordinary force.

Stories of crook life as well as pictures that depict society life are always interesting. When these two phases of city life are blended in a picture by such an expert director as Mr. Fitzmaurice, aided by Betty Compson, Bert Lytell, May McAvoy, Garth Hughes and several other screen players of prominence, a startling, thrilling, entertaining picture is sure to result.

"Till We Meet Again."
(At The Rialto.)

Mae Marsh, leading an all-star cast in the William Christy Cabanne production, "Till We Meet Again," plays the role of a girl who is loved by a crook and an aristocrat. Her heart goes out to each of them. She is stirred with sympathy for the crook who befriended her and stood ready to share his last cent with her at a time when she was friendless, homeless and frightened. And the aristocrat had risked his honor and reputation in serving her. Not until the final scene does the story unfold the phases of his romance, and not until then does the story bring out its title, "Till We Meet Again," in a smashing

There isn't a single one of them who is not a resident of Atlanta. The songs and dances in the big revue went off with a snap and precision at Monday's performances which made many of the audience refer again to the program to assure themselves of the word "amateur" was really there. The six big scenes were handled in a way to reflect all kinds of theatrical glory upon any performers of any caliber. And the costumes were gorgeous enough and original enough and striking enough to bring out high approval from the feminine contingent in the packed houses.

There were three shows yesterday. The big frolics will be at the Grand all this week. They improved with every show Monday. As the stage fright expected of amateur wears off, as they grow accustomed to their parts and to the big orchestra, things naturally move more smoothly, and each show of the day went better than its predecessor. Which means that by tonight, or tomorrow at the latest, it ought to be a regular sockdologer of an entertainment.

Where all were so good, it would be unkind to pick any individual for special praise. Suffice it to say that, where one appealed more than another, it was probably because of the peculiar tastes of the audience. For name and full program, the general public is herewith referred to the story carried in The Constitution of yesterday.

DRIVES OUT CATARRH

A Simple, Safe, Inexpensive Method that Clears Out the Head, Nose and Throat.

There is no disease more offensive or disagreeable or no disease that will lead to as much serious trouble as catarrh. You can now get rid of it by a simple, safe, pleasant home remedy discovered by Dr. Blosser, a catarrh specialist.

Dr. Blosser's Remedy is composed of medicinal herbs, flowers and berries, which you smoke in a dainty pipe or cigarette. The smoke-vapor is inhaled into the air passages of the head, nose, throat and lungs and carries medicine where sprays, douches and salves cannot possibly reach. Its effect is soothing and healing and is entirely harmless. It contains no cubes or tobacco, and may be used by women and children, as well as men.

If you suffer from catarrh, asthma, catarrhal deafness, or if subjects frequent colds, you should try Dr. Blosser's Remedy which may be had at any drug store; or if you desire proof of its beneficial and pleasant effect, send ten cents (coin or stamp) to The Blosser Co., 30 S. ## BANDITS IN TRUCK LOOT CHAIN STORE

McDaniel Street Rogers Store, Calhoun School, Policeman's Home, Auto and Chicken Roast Are Robbed

A motor truck is believed to have been used by burglars that late Sunday night looted the grocery store of L. W. Rogers company, 160 McDaniel street, making off with a quantity of groceries.

The robbery was discovered when employees went to open the store Monday morning, and the detectives were immediately notified. Entrance was gained by forcing open the door. No clues could be found by the officers as to the thief's identity.

Burglars also looted the Calhoun school, at Piedmont avenue and Currier street, taking a gold watch, a pair of shoes and overalls belonging to Clark O'Neal, 145 Glenn street, records at detective headquarters show.

Three robbers entered the home of Policeman Jeffrey R. Wilson, 295 West Fourth street, just before day Monday morning, and ordered Mrs. Wilson, who was awakened by the noise they made, not to make any outcry. She fainted immediately, and $500 in money was taken by the bandits before departing.

Wilson, who reports for duty at midnight, had been gone about two hours at the time the burglars were discovered by his wife. She stated she thought she would be able to identify them if seen again.

W. E. Duncan's car was stripped of its tires and other accessories by thieves, who broke open the door to his garage in the rear of his home, 381 Ponce de Leon avenue, late Sunday night.

R. S. Behling, of 921 South Moreland avenue, reported the theft of 25 fine-blooded fowls from the roost in the rear of his home. It is believed the thieves used chloroform in preventing the fowls from squawking.

Mrs. C. E. Bennett, who lives at East Lake, W. E. Barnes, 1229 Marietta street; Estella Phillips, 192 Haynes street; and Milledge McKie, 300 Prado, reported the theft of gold watches Sunday night.

Zebulon Elects.

Zebulon, Ga., January 8.—(Special.)—Zebulon has just had its city election and the following are the officers for the coming year: Dr. J. R. Graves, mayor; Dr. Charles Watkins, J. M. Means, W. D. Howell, W. S. Slade are the councilmen; J. M. Means and W. D. Howell being new members. This makes the third term for Dr. Graves as mayor.

DR. HOLTZENDORF TO SPEAK BEFORE EPWORTH LEAGUE

Dr. O. E. Holtzendorf will address the regular monthly meeting of the Atlanta Epworth League Union to be held Tuesday night at St. Mark's church at 7 o'clock. An unusually interesting program of entertainment has been arranged, including music by the reorganized union orchestra and a humorous debate to be staged at the end of the session. A number of other entertaining things have been arranged by the St. Mark's entertainment committee, and all members are requested to be present. The public is cordially invited.

WORKER IS KILLED BY CIRCULAR SAW

Franklin Chaffin Dies of Injuries When Legs Are Severed at Ben Hill on Monday

Franklin M. Chaffin, 68, sawmill worker of Ben Hill, died about 4:30 o'clock Monday afternoon from injuries received in the sawmill in Ben Hill about 11:30 o'clock Monday morning, when both legs were practically severed by a high-powered circular saw.

Mr. Chaffin was rushed to Atlanta by Joe Jones, owner of the mill in which he was hurt, and Robert Baker, a sawyer. They were met at Lee street and Campbell road by the Grady ambulance. Upon his arrival at the hospital Chaffin was unconscious from loss of blood, and although surgeons worked fast in an effort to save his life, their efforts were unavailing.

It is claimed that Chaffin's clothing became entangled with the saw machinery, which first carried him several feet in the air. As he fell both legs struck across the circular blade. Baker, who was working nearby, was the first to reach the injured man and render help.

Chaffin is survived by his widow and five sons, Dr. E. F. Chaffin, Martin, Ga.; M. G. Chaffin, of Auburn, Ga.; W. W. Chaffin, of Tucson, Ariz.; M. C. and C. A. Chaffin, of Atlanta; two daughters, Mrs. J. T. Moore, of Tifton, and Mrs. J. T. Malcolm, who lives in Alabama.

The body was removed to the chapel of Harry G. Poole. Funeral arrangements have not been completed, pending the arrival of relatives.

ICE MEN PROTEST MUNICIPAL PLANT

Finance Committee Defers Action on Ice Plant, Police Budget and Madison Widening—Money Asked.

S. Stockwell Dudley, president of the Consumers' Ice company, and representing other local ice industries, appeared before the finance committee of city council Monday and voiced protest against the resolution pending in council to appropriate $25,000 for the installation of a 20-ton ice plant at the crematory which would furnish the city departments with that commodity.

The resolution was introduced in council at its initial session of the year by Councilman Claude Ashley who declared the city was expending more than $10,000 per year for ice. He stated that machinery capable of supplying the city's needs could be installed at a cost of $20,000 or $25,000, and that it would more than pay for itself within the next three years.

Mr. Dudley declared that the city was getting ice at the present time from local companies at practically cost of production and there was no reason why it should seek to manufacture for its own use in competition with Atlanta ice industries. No action was taken by the committee, except to assure Mr. Dudley the matter would be discussed in general council before the resolution of Councilman Ashley was adopted.

Urged Budget Adoption. Police Chief James L. Beavers, Rev. John W. Ham, ex-officio member of the old police commission, and Councilmen Wardlaw and Johnson, former commissioners, appeared before the committee and urged adoption of the 1923 budget as approved by the old commission before retiring from office.

The budget calls for an appropriation of $908,280 for maintenance of the police department during the ensuing year. Listed in the budget are items calling for an additional increase of $10 per month to members of the department and funds for paying salaries of 50 new members of the force. This was also taken under advisement by the committee.

J. R. Smith, prominent Atlanta real estate man, appeared before the committee as spokesman for a delegation representing the Atlanta real estate board, and asked for an appropriation of $30,000 to be used in connection with the proposed widening of Madison avenue from Castleberry to Whitehall streets.

This thoroughfare will be greatly needed, Mr. Smith stated, as soon as the Spring street viaduct is completed. The project will cost around $100,000. He stated, one-third of which will be raised among property owners who would be benefited; one-third by the real estate board, and the remaining one-third to be contributed by the city. The committee also deferred action on this matter.

Other requests for appropriations were filed with the committee from the following delegations: Property owners of West Peachtree street filed a petition requesting $48,000 to complete the widening of that thoroughfare as was begun in 1922.

A. D. Greenfield asked for an appropriation of $7,000 to complete sidewalks and curbing on Williams and Cain streets.

Fred Houser, secretary of the Atlanta convention bureau, requested that $3,800 be appropriated to the bureau this year, instead of the usual $2,500. Representatives of the community home for delinquent girls asked for an appropriation of $5,000 for maintaining work in that institution.

Councilman C. D. Knight presented a petition from the governor's horse guard asking for an appropriation of $10,000 to erect a stable.

M'GREGOR ACCEPTS DECISION OF COURT

Will Not Appeal Ruling of Court in Favor of Clarke.

Refusal of Judge W. D. Ellis to oust John W. Clarke, pension commissioner, from office will not be taken to a higher court by Major C. E. McGregor, pension commissioner-elect, it was stated Monday night.

Major McGregor announced that he would accept the superior court decision which held that the act of 1918, which allows the pension commissioner to take office in January instead of at the time of other state office changes, is unconstitutional, and will abandon his fight to displace the incumbent before June 31.

Major McGregor was overwhelmingly elected to the office in the December election. He made demands on Commissioner Clarke, who is filling the unexpired term of the late Commissioner John W. Lindsay, for the place on January 1, and entered the court with his contest last week.

The commissioner-elect charged that the commission held by Commissioner Clarke, which permits him to hold office until June, is illegal owing to the 1918 act which, he claimed, authorized for the beginning of his term on January 1.

Commissioner Clarke filed a demurrer to Major McGregor's petition, insisting that his commission is legal, and contending that the act of 1918 is contrary to the old laws requiring that statehouse officials change office in June. Judge Ellis sustained the demurrer.

Both parties to the contest are Confederate veterans, and have been fast friends since the war between the states. The litigation has at all times been friendly in its nature.

LUTHERAN BROTHERS INSTALL OFFICERS

Officers of the men's brotherhood of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, recently elected for the ensuing six months, were installed by Rev. Karl L. Reimer, pastor, at the regular business meeting Monday evening.

Reports showing much activity and progress for the past six months were made by the chairman of religious work, welfare and membership committee. The newly installed officer, Wan, A. Sperber, outlined plans for the coming six months.

The officers installed were William A. Sperber, elder; W. B. Ahlgren, vice-elder; C. M. Kessler, scribe; C. O. Lyle, steward; E. J. Conover, religious work chairman; C. O. Johnson, welfare chairman; Otto Risse, membership chairman; C. E. Seng, Jr., publicity chairman.

Sims Addresses Barbers' Meeting At Labor Temple

Barbers Rank Third as Moulders of Public Opinion, He Declares.

Placing the barbers third, after newspapers and the movies as moulders of public opinion, Walter A. Sims last night addressed the members of the Atlanta Local, No. 23, Journeymen Barbers International Union, taking to occasion to render an account of his stewardship for the first week as chief executive of Atlanta and making a most emphatic statement as to his intentions regarding the conduct of city affairs under his leadership for the next two years.

The address of Mayor Sims was delivered on the occasion of the 24th anniversary of the Atlanta local of the barbers' union.

Tells of Big Debt. Mayor Sims reiterated the statement he gave out to the press last Saturday in which he declared that upon entering the service of the city as mayor he found not the deficit of about $300,000 as he fully expected, but twice that amount and more, with he declared, "a bunch of tax evasions which were handed to us as cash in hand, totaling something like $444,000, and of this amount, there was about $100,000 worth that were three years old."

Mayor Sims was loudly applauded as he left the hall to fill another speaking engagement. Mayor Sims was introduced by Attorney James A. Miller, formerly a barber. Much amusement was occasioned by the statement of Mayor Sims that "Jim Miller was his first barber."

Miss Bessie Kempton, representative-elect to the Georgia legislature, was an extempore speaker.

Other features of the program were musical numbers by an orchestra, two character dances by Miss Francis Miller; recitation by Miss Mayme Gene Cole; songs by Miss Mary Jerome and an humorous sketch by Misses Jerome and Cole.

Refreshments were served at the close of the program. C. T. Joiner, who was to have acted as master of ceremonies and conducted the scheduled installation of officers, was ill and could not be present.

A large crowd filled the Labor Temple to capacity.

A Common Conclusion. (From Arkansasaw Thomas Cat.) There is a disposition among many persons to conclude that a man does not work unless he wears a long, tired, stinky look and a pair of green overalls.

LOWRY COMPANY DIRECTORS ELECT GLENN PRESIDENT

T. K. Glenn, formerly president of the Trust Company of Georgia, Monday was elected president of the Lowry Bank and Trust Company of Georgia, at a meeting of the board of directors of the organization, which is a combination of the Trust Company of Georgia and Lowry National bank.

H. Warner Martin, formerly president of the Lowry bank, was elected vice president and executive manager, and William C. Wardlaw, formerly vice president of the Trust Company of Georgia, was chosen vice president.

Other officials and directors of the combined institutions were published in The Constitution of January 7.

Move Wesleyan To Atlanta, Urges Member of House

At Least Let Cities Compete for Enlarged Institution, McMichael Says.

Now comes Edward H. McMichael, member of the Georgia legislature from Marion county, with a proposal that Wesleyan College for Women be moved from Macon to Atlanta.

Mr. McMichael, in an open letter addressed to trustees of Wesleyan Female college, to Methodists generally, and to all friends of higher education for women, protests against purchase of a site in Macon for the Greater Wesleyan now proposed without giving other cities an opportunity to say what inducements they will give to bring the college within their borders.

He points out that Atlanta offers advantages for a women's college which far exceed those of Macon, citing in particular the wonderful opportunities to musical students in grand opera and the many great artists, both instrumental and vocal, who appear in concert here. He then further points out the object lessons in political science which the state capitol and the many courts in Atlanta hold forth. He says that with Wesleyan in Atlanta her students who desired to study law or medicine could find suitable courses at Emory.

"Columbia has her Barnard, Harvard its Radcliffe, Tulane its Newcomb—why not Emory its Wesleyan?" asks Mr. McMichael.

Letter to Public. His letter, in part, says: "I am sure that every friend of old Wesleyan wants to see her start the new growth under every possible advantage. Let's make every opportunity as to educational environment, climatic condition and financial support available to her. As a citizen of south Georgia (Marion county), as a patron of the past, and as a patron to-day and for the future, I believe the trustees of the college are about to make a serious mistake in quick action. Their decision to purchase a tract near Macon, known as the Rivoli place, 132 acres, for $100,000, upon which to erect the new buildings, almost closes every opportunity. Personally, I believe that Atlanta could and would offer advantages and opportunities that would be very attractive. At least, $100,000 should be the minimum nucleus upon which to start. The sale of the college property in Macon would bring a portion of this. Then how much will Macon give? How much will Atlanta give? It would be interesting to know how much Macon has given Wesleyan in her history these 85 years. It is sad that every contribution in these 85 years would amount to less than $20,000. LaGrange has done more than twice that much for LaGrange Female college. Rome has more than doubled that for Shorter college. The Wesleyan girls do most of their school studies in their food is bought from the grocery merchants there; why, the profits made on commencement dresses alone would amount to more than every contribution made by Macon in the history of the college.

Atlanta is known throughout the country as a great educational center. Women are entering the professions, and regardless of convention and tradition, the modern woman's college must provide education in the professions for her. With Wesleyan in Atlanta, if some of her students wanted law, Emory could provide the course. If they wanted medicine, Emory could give it. Columbia has her Barnard, Harvard its Radcliffe, Tulane its Newcomb, why not Emory its Wesleyan?

Another consideration not to be overlooked: Atlanta has already won her prestige in commercial, financial and educational endeavors. Standing upon one of her tall buildings, the Candler, for instance, the eye takes in at a sweep Oglethorpe university, Agnes Scott college, Emory university and other institutions. Would it not inspire vigorous rivalry between these institutions to place Wesleyan in their midst?

My belief is that Wesleyan in Atlanta would attract ten girls from the Carolinas, Florida, Mississippi, Alabama, Louisiana, Texas and other states to one if located in a field from the banks of the Ocmulgee. I am not fighting Macon, not at all, but I am working for the good, the future growth and grandeur of the alma mater of my daughters.

GOOD WILL COUNCIL WILL MEET THURSDAY

A meeting of the "Good Will Council," recently appointed jointly by the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce and the Atlanta Federation of Trades, will be held Thursday evening at 6:30 o'clock in the chamber of commerce.

This will be the first meeting to be held since the full committee was named by both sides, and it is expected that the regular organization will take place and a plan will then be arranged under which this important body will work during 1923.

NO TIME TO TEMPORIZE.

The good people of Marietta are to be congratulated upon the firm and unmistakable action they took

ing the recent bombing of a Syrian's home and the issuance of death threats against the local Syrian colony.

That state and county officials were urged unanimously by 600

citizens to offer sufficient rewards to the offenders, accentuates a fact that the people of Georgia generally understand—that the citizenship of the city of Marietta, and of Cobb county, strongly condemned the offense, although the absence of such certified opinion had led to ru-to the contrary.

There can be no argument in the premises.

Constituted authority is defined and the laws of the state and nation scorned when the rights of citizens, be they white or black, native-born or foreign, are jeopardized

by mob rule, and by self-constituted

"regulators," whether acting singly or in groups.

The safety of the home, and the protection of the life and limb of citizens, are fundamental guarantees of law and order; and the very basis of our government will break down when there is not enough a rigid system of justice

through the legally constituted channels of jurisprudence.

Georgia has enough troubles arising from an irresponsible element in her borders without adding to it the bomb-thrower and the anarchist.

Quick justice to the Marietta offenders should be meted as an example. Such crime cannot be tol-

THE INTERIOR PORTFOLIO.

Advices from Washington indicate that President Harding may appoint either Representative Frank

Mondell, of Wyoming, or Senator

Harry New, of Indiana, or Dr. John

mous engineer, to the interior portfolio to be vacated on the fourth of March by the voluntary retirement of Secretary Fall.

Both Mondell and New will go out of office at the end of the 67th congress, having been defeated for

primary of his own party last summer, when Beveridge was nominated, the latter suffering a stinging

Representative Mondell, who is floor leader for the present "majority" in the house, ran for the senate, and went down in defeat in the democratic landslide in No-

These two retiring members are close personal and political friends of the president, and belong unreservedly to the "old guard" faction of the republican party.

By reason of the fact that the department of interior administers public lands and Indian affairs,

water power developments, the federal immigration programs in the west, and so on, it has been customary, with two or three exceptions, to give this portfolio to a far western man. For that reason it would seem that Mondell has the geographical advantage over New,

though the latter is perhaps the closest social friend the president has among his old colleagues in the senate.

The president has thus far given

most of the recent major appointments to unsuccessful republican candidates in the November election.

Illustrate, he made federal judge

Stephen Davis, who was defeated for the senate in New Mexico by

sey, who lost the gubernatorial fight.

He does not seem particularly disposed, however, to take care of the "lame ducks" in congress.

From the standpoint of intellectual equipment and experience the

choice than Dr. Hammond. His work for many years has particularly fitted him for the administration of the federal matters that specifically come under the interior de-

of the federal coal commission.

BRING THEM HOME!

There is not the slightest danger of any involvement of the American forces now occupying a little area around Coblenz, Germany, in any

French occupation of the Ruhr valley.

And yet this government has no official representation on the reparations commission, and it is contradictory and unwise to keep them

there another day.

The senate acted wisely in voting that they should be withdrawn

at once.

The republican leaders—the very men who fought the hardest to defeat the treaty of Versailles, and who have since fought, until very

ican co-operation in setting the European house in order, even for the economic benefits that would thus accrue to this nation, are the very men who indirectly fought the senate resolution providing for the withdrawal of these troops; and yet

when the vote was taken they did not have the courage to vote their expressed convictions.

The of this government

taking no friendly part in bringing amicable adjustments of the reparations problems, by which complete

European peace may be assured, the markets opened, the business and industry of the nations rehabilitated, and the debts, amounting to $11,-

000,000,000, due the United States, made a debatable asset of this government, is unthinkable.

Even leading "irreconcilables," as illustrated by Senator Borah's recent resolution, take that view of

and encouraging tendencies toward a co-operation that is sooner or later inevitable.

And yet the administration is openly fighting the resolution, and for no other reason than that it cannot, apparently, get away from petty politics, even when so great a world problem—and practically so important an economic issue, involving the producing interests of this country—is at stake.

Whatever the reparations problems may be, however, the A. E. F.

is a thing of the past. Governmental consistency demands that the American soldiers in Germany should be brought home.

CAUSE AND EFFECT.

The Associated Press brings out of Washington the following official, and somewhat astounding

though not unlooked for, statement:

"Imports for 1922 probably will show an increase of about $400,000,

000 over 1921. Dr. Julius Klein, director of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, reported today on the basis of complete statistics for the first nine months of the year.

The value of exports for 1922, he estimated, would be around $700,000,

000 below the exports of 1921."

This enormous decline in export values cannot be charged to any great extent to any change in the price level. This would undoubtedly account for part of the decline, but a small part at best, as the

ucts for export was, on the average, not materially re- downward during the year 1922.

The figures impress two specific and unmistakable tendencies, and with them a rebuke to one that equally as unmistakable.

First, the United States bought heavily from overseas countries

during the early months of 1922.

Before the permanent tariff law was enacted, in order to escape the heavy and unwarranted exactions of that law, hence the increase, as for the whole year, in imports.

On the well-balanced theory of trade reciprocity the European nations, even if financially able to do so, would not buy American products, if able to avoid doing so, unless they, in turn, could sell their products to this country; and a high tariff wall not only keeps

American products in, but products of other countries out. Hence the scramble in the early months of 1922 to import heavily in advance of the pending tariff imposts.

The most significant fact in the statement—the decline of export values amounting to $700,000,000—

carries a rebuke against the policy of isolation practiced by this government, resulting in the closing of European markets to American export commodities.

There cannot be a sustaining prosperity in this country until an equitable balance of trade is secured and maintained.

And as America is primarily a producing nation, that must sell largely abroad, the mere important is that this nation should cooperate to the extent that the other nations of the world may be economically rehabilitated.

It makes me stir;

For there she

Twas there the woodland violets

Knew where her steps would be.

An' many a time an' often

She plumed 'em on for me!

An' often in its

My soul seemed lost in light;

Her eyes—that made the morning,

Her lips—that kissed Goodnight!

I just had that to cheer me

Along the lonesome way.

An' like the love she gave me,

They've taken it away!

FRENCH PREPARATIONS FOR WAR

This leads me to speak of the preparations made by France. It has just been shown that they came after those of Germany, that they were simply a legitimate answer and, moreover, an answer that might be termed belated. And yet we knew that we had an inferior in numbers to the German army.

HOW DOCTORS TREAT COLDS AND THE FLU

First Step in Treatment Is a Brisk Purgative With Calomels, the Purified and Refined Calomel Tablets That Are Nauseless, Safe and Sure.

Doctors have found by experience that no medicine for colds, coughs, sore throat, and influenza can be depended upon for full effectiveness until the liver is made thoroughly active. That is why the first step in the treatment is the new, nausealess calomel tablets called Calomels, which are free from the sickening and weakening effects of the old style calomel. Doctors also point out the fact that an active liver may go a long way towards preventing influenza and colds and is one of the most important factors in enabling the patient to successfully withstand an attack and ward off pneumonia.

One or two Calomels on the tongue at bed time, with a swallow of water—that's all. No salts, no nausea, no slightest interference with your eating, pleasure or work. Next morning your cold has vanished, your liver is active, your system is purified, and you are feeling fine, with a hearty appetite for breakfast. Genuine Calomels are sold only in original sealed packages, price thirty-five cents for the large, family-package; ten cents for the small, vest-pocket size.—(adv.)

Aspirin Gargle in Tonsillitis

Cut This Out and Save if Subject to Sore Throat

A harmless and effective gargle is to dissolve two Bayer Tablets of Aspirin in four tablespoonfuls of water, and gargle throat thoroughly. Repeat in two hours if necessary. Be sure you use only the genuine Bayer Tablets of Aspirin, marked with the Bayer Cross, which can be had in tin boxes of twelve tablets for few cents.—(adv.)

Resinol keeps skins clear in spite of everything

The smoke and dust of city life, the sun and wind of the country, the steam and dirt of housework—all spell ruin for good complexion. But the regular use of Resinol Soap, with an occasional application of Resinol Ointment, keeps the skin so clean, clear and fresh that it simply cannot help being beautiful.

All drug stores sell Resinol Soap and Ointment. Why don't you begin using them?

This year we hope to exceed all previous records on account of so many new homes.

indicated in the telegram No. 129 of July 30, confirmed by a telegram of July 31. The prohibition of the question applies to cavalry as well as to troops of other arms; no patrol, no reconnoitering party, no outpost, no unit must be located to the eastward of the Rhine line.

"Anyone passing beyond it will be liable to court-martial; only in case of well-defined attack will it be permitted to disregard this order, and it is to be communicated to all the troops."

The third telegram bears the date of August 2, the day before the date of Germany's declaration of war against France. At that time German mobilization was in full swing. German troops had occupied Luxembourg, and they had violated French territory at numerous points. German cavalrymen had arrived at Jönköping and Biron, six or eight kilometers from the frontier; at Suarce, where they had seized horses about to be sent to the front.

"During the day, at 10:30 a. m., the minister, despite these violations of the frontier, for the purpose of removing all appearance of aggression, called renewed attention to the contents of the telegram of July 30. At 5:30 p. m., the commander-in-chief sent to the commander of covering sectors the following message:

"The prohibition to pass eastward of the line indicated in telegram No. 129 of July 30, distant about 10 kilometers from the frontier, is canceled."

"Nevertheless, for national reasons of a moral nature and for imperative diplomatic reasons, it is absolutely necessary to allow the full responsibility for hostilities to devolve upon the Germans."

"The German, and until further orders, covering operations shall be confined to pushing back across the border all attacking forces, which are not to be pursued any further, and no troops are to cross into enemy territory."

It was not until August 5 at 12:30 p. m. (England had declared war on Germany at 11 o'clock) that the commander-in-chief sent to the commander of covering sectors the following message:

"War having been declared, there is no longer any restriction on covering operations to be executed such as may result from missions entrusted to the troops in the different sectors."

Such were the French facts. Thus did they threaten Germany! And the German emperor not only knew of them some months ago, when he was in the shelter where he went to hide away his courage, but he knew them on that very day, that is, on August 5, since he made notes on a dispatch which alluded to the French advances. It is possible to tolerate that man, in his memoirs, shall disclaim responsibility because of the preparations made by nations which were simply following far behind in the footsteps of his own preparations? Whatever he may do, whatever he may say, whatever he may write, I would declare that his responsibilities encircle his brow like a crown of thorns, were it not that I am afraid of disfiguring that noble symbol in thus transferring it from a sacred to an accursed head.

Thus the German emperor, since he is the synthesis of that regime of which he was the seed and beneficiary, cannot escape the double proof against him, even if preparations were made by Russia for a difficult defense, conditioned as it was upon a sixteen days' mobilization, even if these preparations were made in concert with those of Austria and Germany, the crime committed by the emperor, who, on the 28th, wrote that war was no longer possible in view of the Serbian answer, consists in having that peace aside and having delivered over governments and people, for a space of three days to the worried and anxious suspense from which misfortune arises.

What he saw.

But his crime is yet greater: 1. He sought, from July 5 onward, to bring on the European war, whose consequences he foresaw and enumerated, and he forbade his ambassador at Vienna from speaking in tones of moderation.

2. He continued his criminal course against Serbia and Russia even after the answer from the former, which he had admitted to be satisfactory.

3. He had the cynicism—so assured was he that no proofs of it would be brought to light—to declare openly that it was necessary to act in such a way as to place all responsibility upon Russia.

4. He tolerated and encouraged the plot of the German general staff and of the German press, against which he forbade his ambassador at Vienna from speaking in tones of moderation.

5. He caused the order for general mobilization in Austria on July 30, through von 'Iotke, before any Russian mobilization had occurred, thus hiding behind Austria in an endeavor to avoid supreme responsibility, and trusting, in addition, that in case of the victory which he felt sure he was going to win, nothing of this would become known.

And now we shall see how he acted subsequently.

Brown to Inspect Government Offer of Soda Nitrate

Following numerous inquiries from Georgia farmers, Commissioner of Agriculture J. J. Brown Monday announced that he will send a representative to the Old Hickory powder plant, at Jacksonville, Tenn., to inspect and report on the physical condition and analysis of 28,000 short tons of nitrate of soda now being offered for sale by the war department.

It is stated that the last recorded sale brought an average price of $47.10 per ton. The war department sold 2,500 tons and it was sold on sealed bids, submitted to the war department in New York, the price being f. o. b. Hermitage, Tenn., which is the shipping point for the Old Hickory plant. Mr. Brown stated that just as soon as the report on condition and analysis of this soda is made, he will make the same public through the newspapers, but that the report will be for information only, that the analysis given cannot be guaranteed, but will probably prove of help in guiding farmers who may desire to make bids. Blanks for making bids can be secured from department orders of ordinance, Frankfort arsenal, Philadelphia, Pa., and the Georgia department of agriculture has secured from the war department several copies of a circular giving all information, which may be had by writing to J. J. Brown, commissioner of agriculture, Atlanta.

Coué Claims Remarkable

MAY EVEN BE USED AS BEAUTY AID, HE SAYS

Cure by Auto-Suggestion

Article IV.

BY EMILE COUÉ.

(Copyright, 1923, United States, Great Britain, Canada and South America by North American Newspaper Alliance (Company). All rights reserved. Unlicensed reproduction in full or in part expressly prohibited.)

Let us now talk a little about specific diseases which can be cured by auto-suggestion.

I must repeat what I have said in a previous article—that it is very difficult to place any limit to the powers of auto-suggestion (within the bounds of possibility, of course), for even in cases of maladies described as incurable I have had occasion to observe such extraordinary improvement effected in the patients' condition that the most extravagant hopes would seem to be justified.

It can be affirmed without hesitation that even organic disorders come within the influence of auto-suggestion. I am aware that this contradicts the theory of a number of doctors who, perhaps, judge the matter rather too hastily. But my affirmation is supported by many other eminent members of the faculty in France and elsewhere who have found its truth demonstrated by actual facts.

Dr. Vachet, professor at the School of Psycho-Therapeutics at Paris, and a distinguished member of the growing corps of physicians who have begun to employ auto-suggestion and suggestion as an adjunct to the ordinary resources of medicine, cited recently the case of a young woman who had been suffering from a tumor of the stomach for a number of years.

The same practitioner mentions the rapid disappearance of a tumor on the tenth rib, the sufferer being a young girl who was also afflicted with a hernia. The tumor, however, had been ill for two years, and in bed for three months. Her temperature was high and her general condition bad. The power of suggestion cured her in a fortnight, the tumor disappearing completely and the fissure healing without leaving a trace.

Remarkable Cure.

In the course of my own experience one of the most remarkable cases which I can call to mind is that of a boy who, if not actually cured of a serious heart affection—endocarditis—at least got rid of all the symptoms of it, and lived and enjoyed life as though in perfect health. One day the door of my study was opened and a pale, thin youth entered, leaning heavily on the arm of his father. At every step he paused, and every breath he took was like the painful gasp of an exhausted animal. Poor little chap! I did not expect to be able to do much for him. However, after his father had explained his malady I took him in hand, demonstrating the force of auto-suggestion by means of a few simple experiments such as I make every day during my lectures. For instance, I made him clasp his hands tightly, and then showed him that he could not unclasp them while thinking and saying "I cannot, I cannot." The boy was convinced. He went away full of confidence, promising to rectify my formula regularly and to practice conscientiously the principles of auto-suggestion. I saw him a few weeks afterwards. There was already a considerable change. He could walk better, his breathing was easier, but he was still in a painful condition. The lad persevered, however, and he did, indeed, "get better and better every day," and when I heard of him next he was playing football! He was exempted from military service during the war, for medical examination showed him to be still suffering from his heart trouble, although on all intents and purposes he was a well grown, muscular young man. Which proves that symptoms can always be relieved, by auto-suggestion, even when the disease itself is incurable. Take diabetes. According to certain authorities this affection may sometimes have its origin in nervous trouble. Generally, of course, it is organic. In any case, I have known its frequently yield to auto-suggestion practiced with perseverance. Recently a patient succeeded in reducing the amount of sugar from 80 grams to 59 in less than a month, while several painful symptoms disappeared.

Helpful in Tuberculosis.

Without venturing to declare that tuberculosis can be cured by auto-suggestion, I do say that in many cases it can be fought successfully. By the practice of auto-suggestion the resistance of the organism is strengthened and the patient aids nature's own tendency to react against disease. This is true, indeed, in all cases of general debility. I know a lady of 60 who has been ailing for the best part of her life, and who, when she came to me, first believed she was near death. She weighed barely 98 pounds. Auto-suggestion transformed her. The idea of health implanted in her subconscious gave her self-confidence unknown to her previously. Her health improved to such an extent that she recovered from an attack of pulmonary congestion which her doctor believed she could not possibly resist, and she has increased her weight by 26 pounds.

Sciatitis, gastric troubles, constipation, asthma and headaches readily give way to auto-suggestion. There is a man who suffered from headaches for 30 years, taking aspirin and similar drugs regularly on certain days of the week. (Notice the power of suggestion; he was convinced he would have a headache on such and such a day, and he did have one). Now he has set his mind working along other lines, and has cured himself of his chronic headache. I also know a man who suffered from sciatitis, and for 30 years, taking aspirin and similar drugs regularly on certain days of the week. (Notice the power of suggestion; he was convinced he would have a headache on such and such a day, and he did have one). Now he has set his mind working along other lines, and has cured himself of his chronic headache. I also know a man who suffered from sciatitis, and for 30 years, taking aspirin and similar drugs regularly on certain days of the week. (Notice the power of suggestion; he was convinced he would have a headache on such and such a day, and he did have one). Now he has set his mind working along other lines, and has cured himself of his chronic headache.

Astonishing as these results may appear, they are perfectly logical at natural, since it has been demonstrated that, in certain conditions, wasted tissue may be repaired by the exercise of auto-suggestion.

As Beauty Help.

And now, here is a word of comfort for my fair readers who are fearful (and how many are not?) of losing their good looks. Of course you are right to want to remain young and fresh and good-looking. And you can do so if you only realize that you possess the secret yourselves. It is that little fairy who dwells in your subconscious and who asks nothing better than to smooth away those insipid wrinkles, to put firm cushions of healthy flesh under sagging cheeks, or restore the laughing sparkle to dulled eyes. Yes, just train your imagination to visualize your face or body as you would like it to be, and you will have a very good chance of seeing them approach pretty near your ideal. Mind I don't tell you that you can change the color of your eyes or hair, or modify the shape of your chin or nose; we must always keep to the materially possible. But you can really improve your appearance and ward off the attacks of age and fatigue. Fatigue, by the way, ought not to be possible if you practice auto-suggestion. It is so largely a matter of imagination. Suppose you have a task to perform. If you think to yourself before hand "this is going to be difficult and tiring," it surely will be so, and you will yawn over it and feel quite tired and bored. But if you are in a different frame of mind, and say, "this is going to be easy; I shall enjoy doing it," then you will not feel the slightest trace of fatigue. The best way of making a hard job easy is to buckle down and do it.

It goes without saying that the practice of auto-suggestion will not dispense one from the observance of the ordinary rules of health and hygiene. Take sufficient exercise. Avoid excesses of nature, so it would be silly to attempt to fight them at the same time. Lead a rational life. Do not overeat. Masturbate your food thoroughly. Take sufficient exercise. Avoid excesses. They are nature's laws. Their observance, combined with the knowledge of the all-powerful effects of auto-suggestion will keep you in good physical and moral health, and enable you to combat successfully any of the ills to which the human body is heir through tradition and heredity.

Let me add most emphatically that I do not advise you to dispense with a doctor's services. Obviously there are many cases in which his advice and medicine and care are absolutely indispensable. And always a doctor's presence and prestige and cheering words are helpful to the patient, especially if he also takes advantage of the wonderful instrument at his disposal, and accompanies his prescription with the proper suggestions. The results will be attained with much greater rapidity. I want both patients and doctors to understand that auto-suggestion is a most formidable weapon against disease.

VICE RINGS FIGHT TO GET MONOPOLY, CHICAGO REPORTS

Chicago, January 8.—A petition charging that several vice rings are contending for a monopoly and that protected vice is flourishing in Chicago because of bribery, and calling for a grand jury investigation was filed in the criminal court today by the Juvenile Protective association.

Wholesale commercialized vice, it was charged, had been uncovered by an investigation of which Paul Kinzie, of New York, general secretary of the American Social Hygiene association, had general direction.

The segregated district which once flourished in Chicago was abolished 16 years ago, and the resorts discovered by the investigation were found scattered through many sections of the city.

Views of $10,000,000 Atlanta Biltmore Hotel of Bowman Chain

Architects' drawings showing two views of the Atlanta Biltmore hotel, to be built at West Peachtree and Fifth streets, at an approximate cost of $6,000,000, by John McEntee Bowman, of New York city, and William Candler, of Atlanta. Later developments contemplated on the property will bring the total cost to $10,000,000, it was indicated Monday by Mr. Bowman and his New York associates following their arrival here for an inspection of the site. The upper illustration depicts a rear view of the structure as it will appear from the spacious garden facing Cypress street. The lower picture is a perspective view from West Peachtree street. Schultze and Weaver, New York architects, designed the building.

BILTMORE WILL COST $10,000,000

a thorough inspection will be made Tuesday by Mr. Bowman and his associates.

Mr. Bowman will remain in Atlanta until Tuesday night, when he is to be a guest at the Asa G. Candler anniversary dinner. He will then continue the tour which will take him to Havana, Cuba, where the Sevilla Biltmore hotel, to be the finest in the Cuban capital, is being built, and to Los Angeles, where another fine Bowman hotel, the Los Angeles Biltmore, to cost $7,000,000, is under construction.

When completed the Atlanta Biltmore will be the finest institution of its kind in America, it was declared Monday night by Mr. Bowman. It will take about a year and a half to complete the $6,000,000 development, he said.

"Atlanta is already a great center city," he said. "With the completion of the new hotel the prestige of the city will increase instantaneously. The building will be unique because of the very high character of the materials which will be used in its construction. It will be absolutely fireproof and will contain every improvement, every device for comfort and convenience of all the best hotels of America or Europe with none of their disadvantages."

American Hotels Best.

"Late years have brought hotel buildings, furnishings and appointments to the highest degree of perfection especially in this country. In the construction and furnishing of the latest American hostilities, Europe was combed both by architects and hotel men to determine what styles they might offer there and to improve the styles over here; the result being that nothing in Europe in the way of hotels compares with our own structures."

"The Atlanta Biltmore will be a fitting monument to the progressive spirit of the business people of the city, reacting not only for their good but also for the best interests of every resident. William Candler deserves congratulations for successfully negotiating the proposed institution which will soon become an important part of your city."

"Instead of supplanting the present hotels of Atlanta the Atlanta Biltmore will add to their prosperity. The marking of a new era of hotel progress will add to the city's prestige and to the civic pride of the people of this section, and thereby will have a decided influence for the better among the older institutions which comprise Atlanta's big hotel family."

Twelve Stories High.

Architect's plans call for a structure of twelve stories. Each of the 500 rooms will have an adjoining bath, a large closet and a vestibule. The rooms will be known as double rooms, having an average size of 12 by 18 feet. About 100 of the rooms will be intended for resident guests.

In collaboration with Messrs. Bowman and Candler, architects decided that the Georgian type of architecture was the most appropriate. The furnishings of the various guest rooms will be of the same period. The building will be absolutely fireproof. Darkness will be entirely eliminated from the interior. Swift and noiseless elevators will convey guests. Every known device for ventilation will be installed.

The building will be placed nearly parallel to West Peachtree street, extending the full length of the block between Fifth and Sixth streets. There will be an entrance to the hotel from the garden, which, it is intended, will be used for automobile traffic.

Shops on Ground Floor.

Guests will enter the building at the level of West Peachtree street. At this lower level there will be a number of small shops, set in place without marring any of the architectural beauty of the whole scheme. The garden will be an essential part of the development. It will be spacious enough for a recreation park for the patrons.

The ball room will have a capacity of 500 persons and will have its own private entrance from the garden so that when used for functions the guests will not be obliged to go through the lobbies. Congestion will be entirely eliminated. At the garden level will be found the main office for the registration of guests, the main dining room, the ballroom and the ballroom foyer.

Executive offices will be located on a mezzanine floor, which will also accommodate a writing room and several private dining rooms. The present apartment house which has been under construction for some time will be finished as a house-keeping apartment house de luxe. A force of about 25 men have been busy on the site for several days engaged in preparing the property for the actual construction work, which will begin at once.

Five-Cent Fare Hearing Postponed to April 16 By U. S. Supreme Court

Washington, January 8.—Appeals of the Georgia Railway & Power company and others challenging the constitutionality of the law under which the railroad commission of Georgia fixed street car fares at Decatur and College Park, near Atlanta, were today advanced by the supreme court for argument on April 16, next.

The case referred to above dates back to four years ago when the cities of Decatur and College Park contested the right of the power company to increase fares from 5 to 7 cents, claiming that they held contracts with the power company guaranteeing them perpetual 5-cent fare service in return for franchise rights.

Fulton county and state courts upheld the validity of the contracts and the matter was referred to the United States supreme court. It was stated Monday at the state capital that the state railroad commission, now the public service commission, had never been involved in the controversy in any way.

AIR MAIL SERVICE FREE OF DEATHS, OIL MEN LEARN

"Not a man was killed in the government airplane mail service during 1922, and the airplane as a means of both commercial and passenger transportation is fast gaining popularity throughout the world," Major E. A. Leonard, official flyer of the Cody flying circus that will show here in a few days, told Atlanta division representatives of the Transcontinental Oil company at a banquet given in his honor Monday in the Rainbow room of the Ansley hotel.

Major Leonard served in the American aviation corps during the recent war and while in Germany was intimately associated with Eddie Rickenbacker, famous American ace, and Lieutenant Quentin Roosevelt. Regarding the future of aviation, Major Leonard thinks that it is as yet in its infancy and that in the course of time will revolutionize industry and trade throughout the world.

DIRECTOR OF BUDGET SPEAKS IN ATLANTA

General H. M. Lord Arrives Here Today With Colonel H. C. Smither.

General H. M. Lord, director of the budget, and Colonel H. C. Smither, chief co-ordinator, will arrive in Atlanta Tuesday morning to attend the annual meeting of the Atlanta Federal Business association, at the Ansley hotel at 12:30 o'clock.

General Lord and Colonel Smither will outline plans for economical conduct of government affairs, and the local association is expected to follow the plans to be explained.

The Federal Business association is composed of the representatives of the various government departments and independent establishments in the city. J. T. Rose, internal revenue collector, is chairman, and the organization has about 100 members.

While in Atlanta General Lord will address the forum committee at a luncheon at the chamber of commerce Wednesday at 12:30 o'clock.

Government Check Forger Is Convicted In Federal Court

Ashley A. Jordan, charged with forgery, was convicted and sentenced to a year and a day in the United States penitentiary by Judge W. I. Grubb in the United States district court Monday.

Jordan, it was brought out at the trial, was visiting in Atlanta in January, 1922. A check made out to Walter Wright, a war veteran, and coming from the government, is alleged to have been stolen by him. On January 27, he presented the check at the Fourth National bank, with Wright's name forged on it, collected the check and disappeared. He was arrested in Smithfield, N. C., on October 21, 1922.

Another case of interest coming before Judge Grubb Monday was that of Hershal Grant, who pleaded guilty of making whiskey and possessing property designed for the manufacture of illicit spirits. He entered a plea of guilty and was sentenced to 75 days in the penitentiary and a fine of $100. J. D. Perkins, also charged with violating the prohibition law, pleaded guilty of having 7 mins of liquor in his possession. He was fined $100.

Ed Jones, negro, charged with possessing whiskey, was acquitted. Alex Hix, pleading guilty to a charge of making whiskey, was sentenced to four months in jail and a fine of $100. Frank Hall also pleaded guilty, being charged with possessing and transporting liquor, and was fined $50. The case of John Owens, former guard at the United States prison, was continued, as was the case of Carl Harbin.

DUKE C. MEREDITH OPENS NEW OFFICES

Captain Duke C. Meredith, formerly of the war department, section head in the contract division of the signal corps, has opened law offices at 731-23 Healey building. Captain Meredith first came to Atlanta in 1912, and since that time has made this city his home. He is a graduate of the law department of the National university, which institution conferred on him both the Bachelor and Master of Laws degrees. He was admitted to the Georgia bar in 1919, following his return from France where he was sent in connection with his duties with the war department.

Captain Meredith is a prominent member of the leading fraternal and secret orders, is a Knight Templar, Mason, Senior Deacon Atlanta Lodge No. 50, P. and A. M., an Odd Fellow, and a member of a number of other social and civic bodies.

SHE DARKENED HER GRAY HAIR

Tells How She Did It With a Home-Made Remedy.

Mrs. E. H. Boots, a well-known resident of Buchanan County, Ia., who darkened her gray hair, made the following statement: "Any lady or gentleman can darken their gray or faded hair, and make it soft and glossy with this simple remedy, which they can mix at home. To half a pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, one small box of Barbo Compound and 1-4 ounce of glycerine. These ingredients can be purchased at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair every other day until the gray hair is darkened sufficiently. It does not color the scalp, is not greasy and does not rub off. It will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. —(adv.)"

Tonight at 8:30 o'clock at the Auditorium the headquarters of the 10th cavalry gets into action as the newest of Atlanta's boxing promoters, The matchmaker of the organization has arranged a card that will come up to the mark set by the best cards that have been arranged here in the past, and since the organization is anxious to make a good impression they have taken particular pains to get the best attractions obtainable.

Lukie Tenner, who has fought some of the best boys in the game in the featherweight class and who has been making Atlanta his home for some time past, in going against Battling Barnett has picked a tough customer for the first battle here in his new home.

Barnett is considered the best of the old time local featherweights, and with a match with one of the real headliners of the game, possibly with Frankie Garcia, hanging on the outcome of this scrap, it is a safe bet that both boys will be in there fighting their best for a win.

The semi-windup between Jackie Carr and Kid Peck, of Columbus, will give the audience something to shoot at in the way of action. Peck is a hard hitting, dangerous young fellow who has a mighty im-

Lower Prices for Basket Battles Are Announced

BY JOHN STATION.
The basketball loving public of Atlanta was helped yesterday when it was decided at a conference between the Tech and the Atlanta Athletic club officials to lower the price of admission to basketball games here. The new prices, which by the way represent the lowest figure at which it is possible to see a first rate basketball game anywhere, will be fifty cents down stairs and twenty cents in the balcony. This means that a fellow and his girl can now see the show for the same price that he alone has seen it formerly.

The policy of the Atlanta Athletic club has been to charge one dollar admission downstairs and fifty cents in the balcony, but in order to enter into larger crowds the price has been reduced. The games before this step was taken were worth the price of admission, so now, anyone who attends will be getting more than their money's worth.

The new schedule goes into effect with the Tech-Auburn game on Friday night, and the Athletic club-B. A. game at the auditorium Saturday night. The audience before this step was taken were worth the price of admission, so now, anyone who attends will be getting more than their money's worth.

Prep Teams to Play.
Another worthy feature is that both Tech and the Athletic club have agreed to allow the various prep teams in and around Atlanta to go on the program at a standard time will be adopted for all match games. It will be 8:30 for the main attraction, and 7:30 for the opener, provided there is one.

So remember these things: You can see a good basketball game at the lowest price anywhere; all games of Tech and the Athletic club at the Auditorium; the time will be 8:30.

Saturday night Tech plays in Clemson. We do not know in these parts so much of the strength of the Clemson five. Suffice it to say that Clemson and Tech have been meeting each other athletically for many years, and they have always been able to put up a good battle whatever the sport.

G. A. C. PLAYS DRAUGHON'S

Tonight at 7 o'clock at the Westminster court Draughon's team of girls will go up against the Draughon's team of last season, which is now playing at the A. C. C. There are many reasons why the Draughon girls realize that they are going to have to fight from the beginning to the finish. This situation dates back six years. That wonderful player, Frances Phillips (who, starred for four years at Fulton High), who is recognized throughout the state as one of the best basketball girls the state has ever produced, is to play with the G. A. C. girls.

Then there is "Red" Walker who played at Fulton and even knows Draughon's team. Fulton held the championship of the prep leagues. The last year these girls played at the high school—Coach Bean had charged them to expect the best play on Draughon's Business college team for two years—Coach Bean officiated there. Last year the other three players, who are to meet Draughon's, played on Draughon's team under Mr. Bean's guidance also. These girls are Misses Lola Gannon, Bazzelle Barcroft and Loretta Condon. So this five are again at work under the wondrous coach, Joe Bean.

Draughon's girls are younger and far less experienced, however. Coach Phillips has been doing some very hard work with these girls for the last 45 days and feels that he now has his girls ready to meet the "fast five."

Of course, no one knows how the victory will go. There will be a tremendous battle, many, due to all circumstances, the G. A. C. girls to win, yet those who have followed the 1922 Draughon girls realize that they fight hard. No one interested in basketball can afford to miss this game.

Captain Bill Kaliska, who is Atlanta's best bet on the referee proposition, will be the third man in the ring, and Kaliska is too well known for it to be necessary to say that he will have the fighters fighting at the time or he will declare "no contest" and trot out the next bout on the program. The fighters know this also—so battling will result.

Tickets for the fight have been placed on sale at the Rex, at Chess, and at other downtown points, and the office at the Auditorium will be opened up early to accommodate those who fail to do their shopping early.

General admission will be 75 cents for the first game, and 50 cents for the second game. Ladies will be admitted free, in accordance with the local custom.

Here's another thing. It does not take a large amount to turn out a good basketball team, for only five men are needed to complete the team. So it ought to be a cracking good game.

When Tech gets her eye in there's going to be some spectacular stuff exhibited. For the lads know how to find each other and to get rid of the ball in short order. They can pass with precision and accuracy. They have the speed and aggressiveness to get the ball under the hoop. All that remains is to find it for the necessary points.

Kid Clay has surrendered his strenuous duties here in town for a while and has quietly made way for Florida. He and Ade Adair accompanied by Thommie (don't ask me how to spell it), where they will sojourn for about a week. They carried guns and reels and went to see in a little hunting and fishing while gone.

Kid has been right here in town ever since the football season and needed the rest. Baseball practice here has been a little less strenuous, always more or less of a strain, so the Kid is taking a little rest in preparation for the grid.

BIG TOURNAMENT FOR ATHENS
Athens, Ga., January 8.—(Special.) With the basketball season in full swing, the Georgia Athletic club is preparing to enter the big tournament which will be held in Athens the last week in February.

Arnoldsville, Winterville, Warkville and Colbert as well as Hartwell, Elberton, Royston, Commerce, Windsor, Madison, Greensboro, Braselton, Lavonia and other teams in this section have begun their journey to Athens and others will start next week.

The tournament this year will outstrip the initial event held here last year at which time Greensboro won the championship trophy. Letters are being mailed to all schools in this section notifying them of the entrance date.

The tournament will last two or three days. In addition to the two big trophies which will be given by the Y. M. C. A. and Banner-Herald, sponsors of the tournament, several individual prizes will be awarded for feature plays. It is planned.

Season tickets will be printed with in the next few days and sent to the towns having teams entered in the tournament. The season tickets, of course, will save money for those desiring to see the games.

Pitcher Llewellyn to Crackers; Yanks and Dodgers Aid Locals

New York, January 8.—Young Yanking Yankees who fail to make good in their spring training workouts will be ticketed to Atlanta in the Southern league, under an agreement between the American league champions and the Crackers.

Those who fail to stick in Atlanta will be marched up to the roof of Stone Mountain and given a good start toward oblivion.

Glenn Killinger, the former Penn State football player who once ran rings around the Georgia Tech team, is the first of the Yanklings to be sent to Atlanta, but Glenn is balking at further service in the minors and may not report.

Llewellyn, a big pitcher whom the Yanks farmed to Buffalo last season, also is said to be Atlanta-bound and there are seven or eight others eligible for transportation down there.

Otto Miller, formerly of the Dodgers, new manager of the Crackers, will be given plenty of semi-big-league material with which to try to raise the club. He has been promised his pick of the Dodger castoffs after the spring trials of that club at Clearwater, Fla.

Men have their favorite sport. Some will walk ten miles over broken glass to look at a soccer game. Others you couldn't pull one of these exhibitions with a rope. A few people you know will crawl from Five Points to Buckhead in order to watch a baseball contest. Others prefer football.

The proprietor of this column knows some gentlemen who admittedly think that they haven't a preference in athletics. They love every branch. It isn't of this class that we are about to speak. The succeeding lines will be devoted to men who have their favorite sport, yet turn out frequently or constantly for the "second best" entertainment.

Dr. William J. Auten, for instance. "Doc's" favorite is baseball. He is actually so interested in this game that he saw some good points about the Atlanta team of last year. "Doc" forgives and forgets easily. He can't understand why a man will spend the afternoon on the links, following an innocent little white ball around for miles, yet "Doc" will stand in line for hours at Grant field waiting his chance to purchase a ticket to see the Yellow Jacket football team in action. If radio was an outdoor sport it would qualify as Dr. Auten's "second best" for he is one of WGM's most ardent admirers.

Joe Ewing likes boxing and grid. Take a night off occasionally and look at Joe Ewing at a prize fight. It has often been said by local observers of pugilism that Joe suffers more than the fighters. He sees a blow when one is started and, unless his neighbor is wary, Joe locates a blow almost as soon as the professional mauler.

Joe has his law books, of course, to keep him interested between fights, but he hasn't much need for them during the football season, because few games are played by the Yellow Jackets unless Colonel Ewing is one of the cash customers. And he seems to get as much pleasure out of football, but he doesn't go through half the gymnastics we have seen him spill at ringside.

GOLF AND BOXING FOR T. T. WILLIAMS.
Bobby Jones has never played in a major golf tournament in the south that his every stroke in the final match was not watched and studied by T. T. Williams. Mr. Williams watches Bobby because there is music in every move of the southern champion and he studies the shots, for Williams is good enough a golfer to readily pick up points that will improve his own fine game.

And yet it's a terrible thing outside, or there's a mighty big social function somewhere, when T. T. Williams isn't at ringside as Battling Budd, Avera, O'Dowd, Silver, Barnett and other of Atlanta ring stars go through their little act of cutting down the opposition. Golf, of course, is Mr. Williams' favorite, but boxing isn't far behind, in the estimation of this real sportsman.

"STEG" LIKES GRID AND TRACK WORK.
Herman J. Stegeman, until recently head coach at the University of Georgia, resigning that post to take charge of the new department of physical culture of the university, is suspected of preferring football to all other lines of collegiate athletic activity. This hankering after the grid comes naturally, as he spent much of his time at the University of Chicago in playing the game, while considerable of his coaching experience has been in this line.

We have an idea that next to football Stegeman prefers track work. After the basketball season is put out of the way, Coach Stegeman rushes to the track squad and the good showing of Red and Black teams in event after event shows that "Steg" puts his heart into his work. He seems to get real pleasure in watching track and field athletics go through their events. He was a track star at Chicago, incidentally.

FOOTBALL, TENNIS FOR "HOP" OWENS.
Frank C. "Hop" Owens is the champion tennis player of all these southern states. We take it for granted, then, that tennis is the sport that "Hop" regards above all others. But we have observed that he talks more about football than he does about the branch of sport in which he stands out as a king, with quite a lot of territory covered in his domain.

"Hop" hasn't missed a tennis tournament since he was old enough and strong enough to hold a racket in his hand and he hasn't been absent from his reserved seat on top of the concrete stands at Grant field since he first made his life in climbing to this dizzy height via the flimsy ladder provided for the purpose.

JOE BEAN IS UNDECIDED.
Ask Joe Bean, coach of the Atlanta Athletic club's basketball team, to name his favorite sport and he'll answer "basketball" quick as a flash. Then the little wizard will ask you to wait a minute, he forgot all about football. You can talk to him for fifty minutes, then, and you will get no definite answer, because Joe is undecided. He coaches both sports and would walk ten miles if he had to in order to see a game of either.

His Athletic club basketball team and his gridiron warriors at Marist college take up most of his time and he has been eminently successful with both. His basket outfit has held clear titles to the southern championship for years and in the late campaign his football team was one of the outstanding prep organizations of the state. No wonder Joe can give no definite answer.

STEVE HARTNEY AND SOME OTHERS.
Steve Hartney, reserve guard on the Atlanta Athletic club quintet, is one of the south's greatest swimmers and divers. He has never told this column so, but the chances are that Steve prefers the summer sport, although he is a splendid basketballer.

Billy Lotz thinks anybody not interested in horses, running and harness, is losing the greatest thing in life, yet Billy never misses a prize fight and even looks after securing matches for a sizeable stable. "Track" Smith's chief thought is about track and field events, but he has never been known to miss a football game in this city.

HARVARD HURDLER IS BEATEN IN NEW ZEALAND.
Wellington, N. Z., January 8.—George K. Krogness, former Harvard hurdler, was defeated here last Saturday in the 120-yard hurdles by H. E. Wilson, a New Zealander, who made a new Australian record of 15 seconds flat in the event. He elapsed one-fifth of a second from the start which he also held. Krogness finished three yards behind.

Jack Merchant, former University of California star, won the hammer throw with a toss of 155 feet 9.4 inches, beating the Australian record of 154 feet 4 inches.

Krogness, Merchant and Morris Kirksey, former Stanford university sprinters, recently arrived for a tour of New Zealand, which it is hoped will serve to improve athletic relations between the islands and the United States. The meet Saturday marked the first appearance of the Americans here.

VAN FLEET NAMED ATHLETIC HEAD AT FLORIDA.
Jacksonville, Fla., January 8.—Major James A. Van Fleet was named director of athletics at the University of Florida, succeeding W. G. "Bill" Kline, resigned, according to word received here this afternoon following action by the athletic board of control in Gainesville today.

John Acosta, of this city, former Yale line man and given a place on several all-American selections, will be head coach in football at the University of Florida.

WAYCROSS HI WINS BATTLE

Waycross, Ga., January 8.—(Special.)—The Red and Black five of the Waycross High school Saturday came through the first acid test of the season, when they emerged victors over the Red Terrors of Glynn academy, 16-7.

The game was featured by the defensive power of both teams, field goals being few and far between. The academy five played a strictly defensive game, usually keeping four men under the locals' goal, and both teams were forced to resort to long distance shooting. Neither team appeared able to pierce the defense of its opponents, and the game early developed into a rather rough and tumble affair.

Waycross opened with a rush, scoring three field goals before the visitors settled down. During the latter part of the first half and the early stages of the second, Brunswick played the locals to a standstill, but towards the end of the game the Red and Black squad came to life, and scored six additional points during the last few minutes of the game.

Regulars Out.
With two of their regulars out of the game, the Bulldogs made a creditable showing. Turner at forward for the locals had never worn a Red and Black uniform before, and was thrust into the game at the last minute to fill the shoes of Cox, regular forward. This boy was in every play and registered two sensational field goals.

Campbell at center and Buchanan at guard were the pivots around which the locals' attack and defense revolved. Johnson at the other forward played his usual steady game, and was the high point scorer of the game. Little also played the first game for the high school, contributing his share toward the locals' victory.

For the visitors Miller at center was the individual star of the game. Jones at forward registered five of the visitors' points.

W. H. S. Pos. Glynn A. Turner (4)..... (2) Knight Johnson (6)..... (5) Jones Campbell (4)..... (3) Miller Buchanan (2)..... (2) Lazarus Little..... (1)..... Krauss McPherson, referee; Parker, umpire. Time of quarters 20 minutes.

PREPS FRAME CONSTITUTION
One of the most important prep athletic meetings ever held in Atlanta will be held tonight at 8 o'clock in the Boys' High school building, when all of the members of the city prep league will assemble for the purpose of ratifying a constitution which will be submitted by a committee appointed in December. The special committee met last night and are ready to submit their findings tonight.

The committee are Al Doonan, recently appointed chief director of the league; President Doyal, of Tech High; Captain Rosser, of G. M. A.; O. K. David, from Boys' High; and others.

A very rigid set of rules and regulations will be submitted. If the league adopts the constitution it will take one of the longest steps forward that is possible in the upbuilding of athletics in Atlanta.

The prep basketball season will open Friday afternoon and the league will submit a new set of rules and regulations this year should be one of the best in the history of prep athletics in Atlanta. Some very important matters will be taken up tonight and it is likely the baseball season will be discussed.

STRUPPER DRAWS $10 FINE FOR SPEEDING.
Macon, Ga., January 8.—(Special.) Everett Strupper, former Tech star and all-American halfback, now assistant coach at Mercer, still is a fast foot—but he isn't quite as fast enough.

"Strup" managed to outrun members of Mercer's football team but he was arrested on a speeding charge after a race he had been running with a Ford roadster and the cop was pushing a motorcycle.

Strupper has been running a race since he was in high school. In addition to coaching, Strupper has been teaching math at Bessie Tift college at Forsyth. The flivver has been employed during this time to take him back and forth from Macon to the Monroe county metropolis. The speeding charge disposed of this morning was Strup's first offense.

THREE BASKET GAMES PLAYED IN ONE NIGHT
Griffin, Ga., January 8.—(Special.) The Griffin High basketball team won two-thirds of a triple bill here Friday night when the girls met and defeated the Thomaston girls by the score of 15 to 8, while the boys' varsity was trimming the Forsyth aggregation 61 to 12. The boys' second team lost to Williamson 14 to 4.

All three games were evenly contested and hard fought throughout. The total pointage for the evening was 111, 80 being made by the Griffin basketballers and 31 by the combined efforts of all opponents.

The girls and boys will meet Locust Grove there Friday afternoon, the former playing the first game of the prep league. The boys expect good games here when Columbus and Zebulon come here to furnish opposition for the home talent during the earlier part of February.

Kline for two seasons, is a graduate of the U. S. Military academy at West Point, where he was a football backfield star. John Acosta was coach of the Florida freshman team the past season, which did not meet defeat in playing the first year eleven from Auburn, Georgia, Vanderbilt, Tech, South Carolina and Alabama.

KEEPING STAR IN CONDITION
Too Much for One Manager, Sport Writers Play Jury Manager of New York Giants, In His Fourth Article, Declares Raymond Was One of Greatest Pitchers in History.

BY JOHN J. MCGRAW.
Fourth Article.
It has been my fortune—sometimes misfortune—to harbor some of the most picturesque characters in baseball—men whose names will remain in sport history long after others of more ability will be forgotten. Always I have had a weakness for these odd personalities. I assure you, though, that the spice and flavor we get out of their presence has been offset by worry and troubles. I doubt if I ever will try another one.

I shall never forget Bugs Raymond. There, by the way, was one of the greatest natural pitchers that ever lived. He had his odd ways of thinking while off the field, but once in the box he knew exactly what he was doing. All we had to do was to keep him in physical condition. That, though, was the thing nobody ever succeeded in doing.

"Say, Mc," Chief Meyers said to me after he had caught Raymond for the first time, "that fellow can do more tricks with a baseball than any man in the world."

And he could. Raymond's long suit, of course, was his spittah. He could make the ball do the queerest of stunts and never did he hesitate to pull one of these tricks when the game was at a deadlock. He thought he was tired me at times. I must admit that he was largely responsible for one of our biggest season's successes.

Every fall Bugs would promise faithfully to go on the water wagon. In the spring he would show up as if he meant what he said. In two or three weeks he would be right back into his old habits. His fondness for companionship was his downfall. I think he knew every man and boy in every little town we ever played in as well as the big league cities.

CUT OFF HIS MONEY SUPPLY.
One season I tried to cure him by cutting off his money supply. I warned him that if he didn't stop drinking writers not to lend him a nickel. Just the same he would manage to get what he wanted somehow. He sent him out in the bull pen to warm up. The pitcher in the box seemed to be wobbly. In those days the bull pen was back of the bleachers and out of sight of the spectators.

A half hour later I sent the bat boy for Bugs. He could not find him. The trainer then took up the hunt. Presently he returned with the information that Raymond had been expelled from the clubhouse. In a saloon down Eighth avenue drinking beer. He had taken the new drink that I had given him for warming up and had sold it to the saloon keeper.

One fall I persuaded him to take the Keeley cure at a Chicago institute. We got encouraging reports from week to week. In those days the news that Raymond had been expelled for having scared his roommate, an old business man, almost to death by some rough horsplay.

Bugs was very proud of his term in the Keeley institute. He even wore a class button and very proudly exhibited an album with photographs and other souvenirs of his school days. He showed up at spring training camp with all these trinkets. Though expelled, he really had quit drinking. I never saw him look better. He was a changed fellow.

We were in Marlin, Texas, at the time. The newspaper men were sending back interesting stories of the wonderful reform of the Bugs, as we were referring to him. About two weeks, though, I began to see ominous signs. Bugs had struck up an acquaintance with some farmers and was buying a lot of corn.

RAYMOND FALLS OFF WATER WAGON.
We went to Dallas for an exhibition game and Bugs fell off the wagon with a solid. In those days they always served cocktails with the Sunday night dinner at the old Oriental hotel. All these were prepared in advance and placed on long tables in the hotel pantry, just off the dining room.

Knowing the head steward, Bugs decided to visit him. He left the dining room and started to the kitchen. He was stopped by the steward, who handed him a glass of beer. He drank it and then he came back to the dining room. He was very proud of his term in the Keeley institute. He even wore a class button and very proudly exhibited an album with photographs and other souvenirs of his school days. He showed up at spring training camp with all these trinkets. Though expelled, he really had quit drinking. I never saw him look better. He was a changed fellow.

Many Nominations.
New York, January 8.—A record total of nominations already has been made for the 1923 running of the Kentucky Derby. The Westchester Racing association today announced the listing of 1,434 candidates. Entries have been received from every state, in addition to Canada, England and France. The list of entries is topped by Harry Payne Whitney with 90.

A noted educator tells us that girls are much better spellers than boys. This probably accounts for the fact that they are considered better readers and more fluent in composition.

Do you know why insurance companies refuse to insure a great many men because they are under weight? Simply because to be under weight often proves low fighting-power in the body. It often means a weak man, a man who is a liability to his family, a man who is a liability to his country. S. S. S. is sold at all drug stores in two sizes. want you to hear the evidence and then it will be up to you to decide whether you shall expose his weakness in your papers and tell the world that he's no good or whether you will overlook it and give him one more chance. I won't ask you to keep anything out of the papers. I'll leave it to you."

In the meantime, Bugs sat there, his bloodshot eyes staring at him, his hair tousled, his face unshaven. "It's a damned lie, Mc—somebody's been lying to him, fellows," he said, in answer to my opening charge. "You say it's a lie? Well, until I present the evidence, look at him, boys!"

"Maybe he's just got a cold," suggested one of the writers. "A fellow's eyes it give him one more chance. I won't ask you to keep anything out of the papers. I'll leave it to you."

There was a smile and hope came into Raymond's eyes. "I don't smell anything wrong with his blood," suggested another. "How'd he get that way with no money—if it's licker? Another remarked."

And these remarks went round I slowly unfolded the typewritten sheets of the detective's report. Of course, all the baseball reporters knew just as well as that Bugs had gone off the water wagon and had been drunk. I began to read.

HIS FONDNESS FOR BEER AND ONIONS.
Your operative followed one, Bugs Raymond, for eighteen hours, it said, "and noted his every movement. At 9 a. m. the said Raymond went into a saloon known as the Turk Exchange. In a back room he drank seven glasses of beer, ate a handful of pretzels and two Bermuda onions. From there your operative followed the said Raymond to the Knight saloon. There he drank nine glasses of beer, ate more pretzels and two or three onions, etc."

The jurors took careful notes of this and finally summed it all up. The result of the evidence was that Raymond, in twelve hours, had consumed forty-eight glasses of beer, a peck of pretzels and eight Bermuda onions.

"Now, what've you got to say to that?" I demanded of the defendant. "It's a damned lie, Mc! Fellows, there ain't a word of truth in it!"

Several members of the jury averred that they saw Raymond drinking beer, but they didn't see him eating onions. "You mean to tell this jury," I asked, assuming indignation, "that this officer has sworn to a lie—you mean to say you didn't see this drinker eating and eating of pretzels and onions?"

"It's a lie, just the same, Mc! Of course, I might've had a couple dozen of 'em, but I'm tellin' you it's a lie—ain't eat an onion in seven months!"

The jury couldn't hold in any longer. All of us broke into laughter. "Bug," one of the jurors finally asked, "in view of your drinking from onions—this technical minor in the report—will you promise to lay off the rest of the stuff if given a chance?"

"Bet your Sox I will! Fellows, I'm through!"

After a moment of deliberation the jury solemnly acquitted him and voted to say nothing in the papers and give him one more chance.

The defendant, declaring the jury to be a regular lot of guys, went out happy and—got drunk again that night.

The Constitution's Novel-a-Week

Souls for Sale

BY RUPERT HUGHES

Next Week, "Guns of the Gods"
By Talbot Mundy

"Well, he knows," said Titter, "but he's not with this company, you know. Have you your name and address and a photograph outside in one file?"

"No."

"Well, if you'll give them to Mr. Dobbs, with your name and address, we'll let you know when anything occurs. I'll introduce you to Mr. Dobbs and he—"

He moved toward the door to escape from the cruelty of his office, but a frenzy moved her to seize his arm in a fierce clutch.

She tried to pull the vampire as she had seen the part enacted on the screen by various slyth toves. She drew her victim close to her, pressed tight against him, and poured upward into his eyes all the venom of an amorous hyacinth.

"I'll pay the price! I know what it costs to succeed, and I'm willing to pay. I'll do anything you say. You can't refuse me!"

She could hardly believe her own ears hearing her own voice, though her pride in the acting she was doing lifted her from the disgust for the role.

He looked at her without surprise, without horror, without even a moment, but—also without a hint of surrender. His only mood was one of faded pity.

The crass word angered her.

"I'm trying to force my way to my career, and I don't care what it costs."

Titter's sarcastic smile faded.

"Sit down a minute and listen to me. A little common sense ought to have told you that what you've been told is all rot. Suppose I were willing to give a job to every pretty girl who tried to bribe me with love? Do you know how many women I see a day—a hundred and fifty on the average; that's nearly a thousand a week. And if you want me over you'll still have to please the director and the public. How long would our company keep going if we picked out actresses according to their immorality?"

"Forget this old rot about 'paying the price.' Tell Mr. Dobbs your peddler and we'll give you the first commission we get, and no initiation fee or commission will be charged. How's that? A little bit of all right, eh? You're a nice child, and pretty, and could get along."

He lifted her from her chair and put his arm around her as a comrade, and slapped her shoulder blades in an accolade of good fellowship.

She broke under the strain and began to cry. She dropped back into her chair and sobbed. It was good to be punished and rebuked into common decency by the way of common sense.

It chanced that the president of the company was returning to his office from a visit to one of the stars. This was the man whose name was familiar about the world. Every film from his factory was labeled: "Bermond presents—". The slogan of the Bermond picture, "This is a Bermond picture."

When Mr. Bermond heard Mem saying his heart hurt him. He did not like scandal, disorder, confusion, or grief on his lot.

He went to Mem and tried to console her. He took her hands down from her contorted face and forced her to look at him. She was strikingly attractive, appealing.

"Sarah Bernhardt failed in her first second. Sarah some day," he said. "Just you wait!"

Mem's eyes were filling with rain-bows. A bystander drew Bermond aside. It was Claymore, a dramatist who had had a few successes before he established himself in the moving picture as a director.

"That girl has the tear," he said to Bermond. "That was your gift to me for my next picture is awful. Let me take this kid and give her a real rest. She might have just what we want."

"Sure! Fine! Go to it!" said Bermond, and hastened to Mem with the good news that Mr. Claymore—the great Mr. Claymore—was going to give her a chance.

The next morning found Mem at the studio betimes, borrowing masquerade and advice from Miss Calder.

Claymore was waiting for her when she came from the women's dressing rooms. She was daubed, smeared, lined, powdered, rouged, masqueraded, and generally enlivened for duty. Her heart was beating in alternate throbs of fear and frenzy. Her feet were at the brink of the Rubicon.

Claymore had provided a camera man, a few men to handle the electric lights, a property man, and even a pair of musicians—a violinist and the trander of a wheezy little portable melodeon.

Claymore marched her into the scene and gave her a little of what he called footwork.

"Go back to that door and come forward to this spot. Shake hands with—er—with your lover—er—Well—no. Let me see. That's too simple. Let's get down to business."

"You're a— Oh—well, just for instance, you've been—er—betrayed and your child has died and you've been accused of murdering it and you're now being called before the judge and the jury. Do you get me? You're coming into a courtroom under a charge of crime; you feel your shame, but you're innocent of the charge, yet you're overwhelmed with guilt for your fall, and the father of the child is—was killed in the war, say—and you don't much care whether you live or die; so you're in despair, yet defiant. That's a triple layer of emotion for you and I don't suppose you can get much of it over, but—just try to give the atmosphere of it. Not of a man digging toward known gold."

Claymore was as much embarrassed as Mem, for his invention was not in its best working order so early in the morning. He felt as easily as a man badgered by a peevish child to tell a story.

But his little plot stirred Mem amazingly. He could not know how close his random shots had come home to her and flung her back from the forward-looking artist to the lone fugitive who had stumbled into California laden with disgrace.

She was all tremble and her eyes darted, her fingers twitched. Claymore marveled at her instantaneous response to his suggestion. There were born artists who shivered on the least breath of inspiration and suggestion.

His first impression of Mem was that he had found a genius, and he fought against the obstacles he encountered later with the zest of a man digging toward known gold.

In a kind of stupor Mem obeyed his commands like the trained confederate of a hypnotist. She went to the door, came in reluctantly, shamed, downed. She advanced slowly till she reached the edge of the rug he had indicated, then halted, and with a fierce effort forced her head in defiance and braved the lightning of the judge.

She heard Claymore call to her: "That's fine! Now we'll take it!"

"That's fine! Now we'll take it!" She started back, but was checked by the camera man's "Wait, please!" He ran forward and shouted directions on all sides for lights.

"Hit those spots! Throw the ash can on her. Bring up that Klieg! Put a diffuser on that Winfield. What's the matter with the second spot? Your carbons are flickerin' Mike! Mike! Trim those carbons on the second spot! Pull 'em!"

Then the lights went out and there was a wait while Mike ran along the gallery parallel with twocers in his gloved hands. When Mike was ready the camera man shouted: "Hit 'em! All right, Mr. Claymore!" Mr. Claymore called: "Music, please!"

And Mem found herself in a sea of blazing radiance tremulous with a shimmer of music.

She went back to the door and nodded when Claymore's "Are you ready?" penetrated the myth realm from far away. She heard him murmur: "But he is acting! My love! I heard his voice reciting an improvised libretto for her pantomime."

"You've come from your dark cell! The light blinds you! You begin to see the angry public, the cruel judge. You flinch. You fall back. They are going to sentence me to death!"

"But he is acting! My love! I heard his voice reciting an improvised libretto for her pantomime."

THE GUMPS—THE AFTERMATH.

method of getting acquainted. Teacher and student became as much involved in each other's souls as Abelard and Heloise at their first sessions.

Claymore offered her a lift home in his automobile. It was quicker than the street car, but it seemed far quicker than that. They chattered volubly of art theories and practices. They did not realize how long the car stood in front of her bungalow before Mem got out, or how long he waited after she got out, talking, before he bade her the final good night.

Her mother realized it, peering through the curtains, and Leva exclaimed: "Good Lord! The mix has the director eating out of her hand already. She'll get on!"

She met Tom Holby on the lot one day. He had been asked to come over and talk of a possible contract with the Bermond company. He greeted Mem with effusive enthusiasm, and she warmed at the pride of his recognition. Then she felt a little twinge of conscience—an intuition that she had no right to be so glad to see Mr. Holby, since now she fancied she belonged to Mr. Claymore.

One day when a little scene was being filmed in which Mem was the only actress, the rest of the company being excused for a change of costume, a visitor from overseas was brought upon the set, a great French general.

The publicity man suggested that the general might like to be photographed on the scene. He laughed and came forward with a boyish eagerness. When the picture appeared in newspaper supplements about the world it was stated in each of the captions that the great warrior had said, "Remember Steddon is the prettiest girl in America."

The news came in a letter from the man Mem and her mother loved and dreaded. As Mrs. Steddon's fingers opened the envelope in the awkwardness of guilt, two pictures fell to the floor. They were in the brown roguishness of the Sunday supplements and presented Mem standing at the side of the French general. Both stated that he had called this promising member of the Bermond company "the prettiest girl in America."

Mem and her mother gathered themselves together as if they had been dated by a rip of lightning from the blue and waited for the thunderbolt to smash the world about them. They read the letter together. It began without any "Dear Wife" or "Dear Daughter." It began:

"The enclosed clippings were sent to me by members of my congregation who were sojourning, one in New York and one in Chicago. It is hard for me to doubt the witness of my eyes, but it is almost harder to believe that the wife of my bosom and the daughter reared in the shelter of our home could have fallen so low so suddenly. Before I write more I want to hear the truth from both of you, if you can and will tell it.

The Reverend Doctor Steddon was something more than a father to his daughter, something more than a husband to his wife; he was also the high priest of their religion.

But Mrs. Steddon had grown up with her husband and had seen his temper grow him to too many mistakes. She was merely angry at him now for a burst of wrath, while Mem covered before him as an inspired prophet.

Finally in a fine frenzy she went to her table and wrote her husband an answer to his letter:

"Dear Husband—I am ashamed of you for writing such a mean little note. Yes, I am proud to say that my daughter is an actress and is doing fine work. If you are not proud of her it is because you don't know enough to be. You will some day, you'll see."

"She is working hard and earning lots of money, and I'm going to stay here as long as she needs me. I guess you can get along without me a while. If you can't come on out and see for yourself how wrong you are, I hope your next letter will be an apology. Mem would send her love if she knew I was writing. Your loving WIFE."

When this tiny bomb exploded, Doctor Steddon's paragonage it produced as astounding effect. The old devil fighter was not afraid of any terrors of hell. He could even face his richest pewholder without flinching.

But he was afraid of that little wife of his. She alone could scold him with impunity and by the mere withdrawal of her approval cast a cloud across his heaven. He was in an abject perplexity row.

Have a job and get a job. To him that hath—Remember Steddon's first picture was approaching its finish. She had been already acquiring a little name. Gossip of every sort was rife, and some of it was flattering. The word floated about that "Steddon was making good at Bermond's."

The Bermond company, when her picture was finished, agreed to "rent" Mem to a new company that was to make Tom Holby a star. He had earned the elevation, and this meant that he and Robina Fern would part company—at least upon the screen.

When Mem read of this flattering plan in an evening paper her heart gave a hop. She was not sure just what the excitement meant within her there.

She did not want Tom Holby to give a hop. She did not want to see any other woman land him. Claymore abetted upon her meditations. She was under obligations imposed by his devotion.

Woman's WorkDebutantes Are Honored
At Beautiful Luncheon

Three charming debutantes, Miss Erskine Jarnagin, Miss Emily Davis and Miss Martha Boynton, were honored guests at the exquisitely appointed luncheon at which Mrs. William C. Wardlaw entertained at the Piedmont Driving club, the occasion being one of the most auspicious events of Monday afternoon.

Luncheon was served in the pink room, and the artistic decoration was a large pink Jack Horner pie from which pink satin ribbon streamers extended to each guest's place. Silver candlesticks, holding pink unshaded candles, encircled the centerpiece, and at either end of the table were placed silver baskets filled with pink roses and narcissi. Little miniature figures, holding in one arm a printed conundrum, and in the other, the printed answer to one of the other guests' conundrums, featured an interesting incident of the luncheon. Drama League To Hear
Greek Play Saturday

"Euripides the human, with his dropping of warm tears," will be presented to the Drama League Saturday afternoon at Eggleston hall, the first Greek play to be presented to an organization that has, however, presented Indian drama, Japanese drama, and great numbers of modern English, American, French, German, Russian and other European plays. The Greek drama sounds like heavy fare to the uninitiated. As a matter of fact, however, among Greek plays are plays as modern in spirit as any plays of Shakespeare; and the Drama League study class discovered recently how intensely modern could be even a play written in Sanskrit.

Among the Greeks, Sophocles and Aeschylus were esteemed as superior to Euripides; but among modern critics he tends to be rated as surpassed among dramatists only by Shakespeare. In "The Trojan Women" he has painted the sufferings of war as no other dramatist has ever done. In "The Bacchae" he shows the frenzy of spring and of passion; in the "Hippolytus" he shows the eternal struggle in the soul of a fine youth between the goddesses of chastity and the goddesses of love, American and English and European literature of the past quarter century deals precisely, though infinitely less ably, with these very themes. Above all, no dramatist has ever presented woman with such infinite love and sympathy. In "Alkestis" Euripides has drawn probably the noblest and most touching picture ever made of a wife's love and devotion.

Miss Dorothy Spinner, the English woman who will read the "Alkestis," will really act the part in Greek costume. She has read all over the world and comes to the Atlanta Drama League almost straight from a reading for the New York Drama League that crowded the Belasco theater in New York. Her notices from newspapers and universities are wonderful. An American university professor of English writes: "Dorothy Spinner is an English actress who gives a rendering of the Greek drama that is one of the most beautiful things to be seen or heard on any stage today. She adds to an intelligent and dramatic interpretation of the lines a wonderful voice and loveliness of movement and pose." One dramatic critic says: "If you were blind, it would be enough to hear her; if you were deaf, it would be joy enough to see her." There is probably nothing else in America today that has the same type and degree of beauty. The phrase "A Greek figure come to life" is an old one but nothing could better describe the effect of her gestures and positions. In her rendering of the rhythmic movement of the chorus, she is compared with Isadora Duncan, and the Oxford Times speaks of her voice as "one of the most beautiful in England."

Miss Spinner's reading is to be open to all members of the Drama League upon presentation of their membership tickets. Guests will be welcomed on payment of $1, and a special half rate has been made for students and faculties of the various colleges.

The reading will be given next Saturday afternoon at Eggleston hall at 2:15 o'clock.

Miss E. K. Anderson Goes to Paris.

Miss Emma Katherine Anderson, of Marietta, Ga., who has been spending the Christmas holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James T. Anderson, at their lovely home on Whitlock avenue, returns to New York Wednesday to continue her art studies at the New York School of Applied and Fine Arts.

Miss Anderson will sail in February on the Berengaria for France, continuing her art studies in Paris at the branch there of the New York School of Applied and Fine Arts. She will be accompanied by Mrs. Thomas Fitzgerald, of Danville, Va.

Miss Anderson has won an enviable name for herself in costume designing, some of her work having been sent to Paris for exhibition. She will remain in Europe for a year.

Business Women Will Meet.

The second annual meeting of the Business and Professional Women's club will be held at the Chamber of Commerce cafe at 6 o'clock Wednesday, January 10.

Election of officers for the coming year and other important matters will come up including a report from the housing committee.

Woman's Club Pays Tribute To Late Hamilton Douglas

Nothing more delightful ever happened at the Atlanta Women's Club than the assembly singing of the Girls' High Glee club, which was an important feature on the program at the regular meeting Monday. The sweet, fresh voices of the school girls blended into a charming whole that was shot through and through with pep and enthusiasm of the young singers. They sang "In Old Madrid" for "Italia Beloved," a gipsy camp song and a "boogie song," whatever that may be, and best of all they sang their own "Girls' High," composed by one of their number, Christine Gore—and replete with girlish spirit.

After Girls' High, channeled by Mrs. Grace Lee Brown Townsend and Miss Mary Moore, had sung themselves into the hearts of every member of the Women's club present, came Byron Warner, bringing equal pleasure to his hearers, though so different in kind. He sang impressively "Holy Night," as the tribute to the Women's club memorial tribute to the late Hamilton Douglas, spoken by Mrs. Howard McCall. "He was my friend and helper," said Mrs. McCall, "before others had their eyes upon him. He believed in us in those dark days before we believed in ourselves. When we were going forward to buy our first club house on Baker street he sent word to our warren."

Famous Old Recipe for Cough Syrup

Easily and cheaply made at home, but it beats them all for quick results.

Thousands of housewives have found that they can save two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, by using this well-known old recipe for making cough syrup. It is simple and cheap but it has no equal for prompt results. It takes right off a cough and gives immediate relief, usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours or less.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from your druggist, pour it into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, keeps perfectly, and lasts a family a long time.

It's truly amazing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and breaks the membrane, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, hoarseness or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, which has been used for its healing effect on membranes. Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Be Careful What You Wash Your Child's Hair With

If you want to keep your child's hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Multifid coconut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely free of alkali), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing as this cannot possibly injure the hair.

Simply put two or three teaspoonfuls of Multifid in a cup or glass with a little warm water, then moisten the hair with water and rub the Multifid in. It will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and leaves every particle of dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Multifid coconut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces will last everyone in the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Multifid—(adv.)

Mrs. Lydig Hoyt, Famous Society Leader, to Write for Constitution

Three-Fold Aim.

"The aim of the visiting teacher in the public school are three-fold," says Miss Havis, "first to make adjustments in the lives of individual pupils so that more normal progress in school may ensue; second, to bring about a close cooperation and understanding between the home and the school interpreting the one to the other; and third, to make the school the real community center."

"The obtaining of these results is aided by clubs in the school which include Girl Scouts, Sewing club, and 'big brothers and sisters.'"

Some of the problems we have to consider are: repeatedly troublesome conduct on the part of a pupil; delinquency, in school and neglect of the pupil at home; lack of proper recreation and re-creating interest in children over age who have lost interest in school."

When asked to give some idea of a typical day with which the visiting teacher goes through, Miss Havis said:

A Typical Day.

"I began my day by rushing to the office of the attendance officer to enlist her aid with an indifferent parent. Next I visited the Associated Charities office to report several cases which needed assistance because of poverty in the home."

"While there I 'cleared' several new cases with the confidential exchange. The confidential exchange has a record of all social organizations working on needy cases. The visiting school teacher can, therefore, often get a great deal of valuable information about a family before she makes even her first visit to the home."

"At the school I was met by a number of teachers who had special 'problems.' John had been absent several days, and some of the children, saw him on the street. Mary had a note from her mother saying that she must quit school and stay at home to help keep house. Willie, a big overgrown boy, had a job offered him, and was anxious to transfer to night school so that he might accept it. Kate was out of school because she had no shoes."

"Each problem meant a case for social investigation, requiring not only careful study to the home, but months of careful study from all angles, before properly adjusted."

Go to the Barber.

"Coming back to the school in the afternoon I was met by the principal who asked if I would take a little boy, who was in an afternoon class, to the barber shop and have his hair cut. Of course I gladly did this, for what can improve the looks of a ragged, neglected looking little boy more than a hair cut, and better establish a habit of going to the barber."

"Returning to the school I conducted a sewing class, where the girls are trying to learn practical sewing which will help them to become better home makers."

She was married to Mr. Hoyt in 1914. Mr. Hoyt is a Yale graduate, a prominent lawyer, clubman and diplomat. He was for several years secretary to Whitcomb Reid when the latter was United States ambassador to the court of St. James. Mrs. Hoyt is as well known in Washington and the capitals of Europe as she is in her own native New York. She has been presented at the courts of Germany and Austria, to the Queen Dowager Elizabeth of Italy and at Buckingham palace, to the king and queen of England. Yet, with all this, Mrs. Hoyt is a typical American who is not satisfied to rest on the glories and laurels handed down to her at birth. She has gone in to conquer those noted out only to those who merit them—to seek a career on the stage. All because she is feminist enough to believe that women should have jobs if they want them and are capable of performing them, providing that their jobs as being wives and mothers do not exact all of their time. She believes that every woman, rich or poor, has the right to an occupation outside of her home and children so long as she does not neglect her duties toward them. These should come first. She feels that an outside interest and occupation is essential to the happiness of every woman.

Wanted—Two Husbands

—To save one. Young wife whose husband is in the clutches of two unscrupulous flappers desires to meet two bachelors between ages of twenty and forty. Object: Matrimony.

CHAPTER I.*Margaret Makes a Confession.

The week that followed was a difficult one for Cynthia. She hardly saw Roger, and Monica was moody and not inclined to be communicative. Cynthia took to breakfasting in her own room; she could not bear to sit in the "little breakfast room" which she had always loved and be treated with "rigid politeness" by Roger, if indeed he came in at all.

They had one distressing interview when he informed her that her bank account was overdrawn. His secretary always looked after her affairs, going over her cancelled checks and balancing her checkbook for her. For the first time she resented the practice.

"Miss Hunter tells me that you forgot to make notes of several of the checks that you drew this last week," Roger told Cynthia. "Now as I've often told you, if you'd just be careful about that, and—"

As it happened, the checks which Cynthia had not made out stubs for were checks which she had drawn for Lottie. The girl had needed furniture and clothes, and had also asked for $200 which she said she could not give a reason for.

"I just have to have it, Cynthia," she had said, her face white and piteous looking, and Cynthia had given it to her without comment. She had felt that she must keep Roger from knowing about these checks, but had not decided just how she would do it. And when he had asked her for her checkbook she had given it to him, thinking that he would now know that she had not made out the stubs.

"He wouldn't have known, either, if I hadn't given him my account," she thought rebelliously. "And I wouldn't have overdrawn it if it hadn't been for the girls—I've had so many expenses since they came."

"I'm going to divorce Bruce!" said Margaret.

Roger went to his office without further comment, and Cynthia picked up her mail and went to her own room.

"Oh, Cyn," Monica called, as she passed the door of the girls' sitting room. Cynthia entered, to find Monica sitting by the window breakfasting. A fire danced on the hearth, and the little room was very bright and cheerful. "I thought you'd be interested to know that I'm engaged to Phil again," the girl went on. "You approve of him, don't you?"

There was something malicious about the way in which she asked the question, but Cynthia ignored it. She often felt that Monica was laughing at her, and felt annoyed by the realization. Today she found it doubly irritating.

"Yes, I approve of him, of course," she replied.

"Well, so do I for my first husband," Monica laughed. "And, speaking of first husbands, is Margaret going to divorce Bruce and marry Hugh Kendall? Everything seems to point that way."

"I don't know," replied Cynthia, leaving the room abruptly. She hated to think that Margaret's affairs were being discussed by the whole town, and she detected Monica's flippant way of referring to them.

Kendall was giving a dinner-dance that evening, and Cynthia, knowing that Margaret would be there, wondered if there would be any opportunity to see her alone. They were old friends, and she felt sure that Margaret would confide in her if she thought of leaving her husband. Cynthia had not seen Bruce since the ill-fated trip to New Haven.

The party was a brilliant affair. Cynthia thought that she had never seen Margaret look more beautiful though she detected a curious nervousness in Margaret's manner that was quite foreign to her.

"Something is wrong; she's worried, not quite sure of herself," Cynthia thought. "Perhaps that's just excitement, though. Oh, I do wonder what she's going to do."

She had not long to wait to find out. Margaret took her aside early in the evening.

"I'm going to divorce Bruce!" she said, but it was said so definitely that Cynthia instantly suspected that her friend was not too sure of her desires. "I'm telling you before anyone else knows, and oh, Cyn, do be kind to Bruce, won't you? He may not mind a lot—he insists, when we talk things over, that he wants me to leave him, and that he thinks our marriage was a mistake, and all that sort of thing. But he'll be lonesome. He won't have half as good a time when he's out philandering with some flapper, if he can't remember that I'm at home wondering where he is, and waiting for him!"

Tomorrow—A Blow for Cynthia. (Copyright, 1923, for The Constitution.)

BEAUTY CHATS

By Edna K. Forbes

ANSWERED LETTERS.

Mary Louise.—The number of treatments required to dissolve a mole depends upon its size and locality. Even an unusually large mole on the body can be eliminated after several electric needle treatments. Those on the face are handled more cautiously, a lighter current being used which necessitates more treatments. Fortunately the larger moles rarely appear on the face and the smaller ones will not detract from the beauty of most complexions. They give contrast, making the skin look clearer, much like the effect attained by the old time beauty mark, a tiny piece of court plaster. Whenever it is necessary to have the electric needle treatment it should be given by a dermatologist or some doctor who includes this work in his general practice. It is not done any more at the beauty parlors. The expense varies in different localities, from two to five or more dollars a treatment.

Mrs. T. B. Jones.—Keeping your feet in a healthy condition will not need very much of an outlay in money. If you learn to take care of them yourself. This will mean a generous use of the file whenever there are any callous spots appearing. The soles of the feet should be rubbed with a little oil when there is a tendency to dryness of the skin. These files are also used over the top of a corn; if done regularly this filing will keep a corn from enlarging for an indefinite period.

Constant Reader.—As you have such an abundance of hair, why worry over the fact that you cannot keep it in curl? Adopt some style of dressing it that will be both distinctive and becoming, wearing it without any attempt at curling. The coronet braid makes a charming style in such cases as yours.

Ether K. F.—You can never be too old to cultivate a growth of hair. The pilocarpine tonic will help the condition even though you are past 70 years of age. The old hair which continues to fall out is likely dead and should be combed as if to make room for a new growth. I knew an old lady past 80 who could always encourage a fresh hair growth, whenever she felt that she required a greater amount, by simply massaging her scalp for ten minutes each night. It is an unfortunate thing that all elderly people do not realize what they could do to keep themselves as lovely as this one did with her beautiful white hair.

Philip K.—To overcome this tendency to chilblains you should maintain a healthy circulation in the feet. Never place the feet before a hot fire if they are cold, as the sudden change in temperature will always aggravate the condition. However, if the chilblains are itching and burning, as they are in bad cases, you can relieve the trouble almost at once by chilling them suddenly. A heroic treatment is to thrust the feet into snow for a few minutes. But is sometimes obtained by painting the swollen places with iodine.

Tomorrow—Darkening Eyelashes. All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, and to the great number received. So if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question.—The Editor.

"Thirty year old" lenses are not for "forty year old" eyes. It's a good plan to have your eyes tested periodically so they'll not suffer ill consequences from looking through the wrong lenses too long.

Come in and see if your lenses need changing. It won't take but a few minutes, and it may mean a lot to your eyes.

Only Complete
Closing ReportsGeorgia 1922 Corn Yield
Higher Than Preceding Year

The season of 1922 was more favorable for corn than that of 1921 and yields were higher. Twenty-two varieties were tested out. Of these, eight were new varieties.

Plant No.	Name	Grain in Bushel per acre
15	Coker's Williamson	42.4
16	Coker's Garrick	41.3
17	Pee Dee No. 5	38.9
18	Weekley's Prolific	37.9
19	Mosley's No. 1	37.9
20	Coker's Marlboro	37.2
21	Douthett's Prolific	37.0

33	Hastings' Fla. Flint	28.9
34	Improved Golden Dent	27.3
35	Maxican June	27.3
36	Hickory King	26.0

Garrick last year led the test and this year gives practically as good yields as the leader. Williamson, the best yielding variety this year, has always given good results, but has never before led the list. Pee Dee No. 5, Mosley's No. 1, Douthett's Prolific No. 4, are new varieties in the test that appear to be good yielders.

New Orleans market closed, holiday.

New York, January 8.—Nervousness over European political conditions was supposed to account for the restricted volume of business in the cotton market here today and the irregularity of fluctuations. Early declines were followed by rallies, however, and while the latter were not fully maintained, the market showed a fairly steady undertone, closing steady at net declines of 13 to 19 points. March sold up from 26.10 to 26.12 and closed at 26.12. The market opened easy 20 to 30 points lower owing to relatively easy early cables from Liverpool and the weak ruling of the early market for foreign exchange, which naturally served to emphasize the unsettled state of affairs in Europe. There was considerable scattering liquidation and some southern selling which soon brought prices off to 26.12 for May and about 25 to 30 points below Saturday's close on the more active positions. Trade buying, presumably to fix prices checked off the decline during the middle of the morning and there were rallies early in the afternoon owing to the steadier ruling of the late Liverpool cables, encouraging British trade advisers, continued reports of a strong domestic market for cotton goods and bullish spot advice from the south. The rally carried May up to 26.12, but this bulge met further liquidation or liquidation and later fluctuations were irregular, with late prices some 5 to 7 points off from the best.

The official cable from Manchester to the New York cotton exchange said that a fair business was doing in yarns and that cloths were in good demand, and one of the private cables received from Santos early in the morning said it looked as if the European political situation had been discounted by early continental selling. Part of the day's business here was attributed to further evening up of accounts pending more settled conditions abroad. Exports for the day were 2,943,705 bales making 2,943,705 for this season. Port receipts 32,623. United States port stocks 1,013,332.

New York, January 8.—Spot cotton quiet, middling 26.50.

New York.—A vesper service consisting of music without a sermon or a prayer was conducted yesterday at the Park Avenue Baptist church, of which John D. Rockefeller is a member.

New York, January 8.—France's apparent determination to invade the Ruhr brought about a heavy selling of French and Belgian securities in today's bond market, the heaviness of these issues having a depressing effect on the general list, particularly of French and Belgian securities.

United States government securities were firm with the exception of Liberty 3-12s, which yielded 4 cents on $100, reflecting the competition of some of the new municipal issues. The other active government bonds showed gains of 2 to 10 cents, the new treasury 4-14s closing par and closing at 100.02. ## Trio from "Passing Show" Opens Week of Theatrical Offerings

Tonight Prima Donna and John Quinland Will Be Heard Under Direction of Mr. Rogerson.

PRIMA DONNA TONIGHT
Tonight "The Passing Show" numbers from Station WGM between 6 and 7 o'clock will feature Miss Helen Remstrom, prima donna, and John Quinland, tenor, who are two of the biggest hits of the show as it appears this week on the stage of the Atlanta theater. Musical Director Rogerson will direct the music personally from Station WGM.

BY RALPH T. JONES.
Radio fans of America were given an opportunity last night to hear some of the leading stars in "The Passing Show," New York Winter Garden's stupendous annual musical production. These performers sang over WGM, The Constitution's broadcasting station, at the regular concert from 6 to 7 p. m.

Sam Howard and Jack Rice, two of the male principals in the production, sang "Carolina in the Morning," and, judging from the telephone calls and telegram received from fans in all parts of the country, they made Ole Carolina sound like a night in interesting place in the A. M., anyway.

Then, Sam Howard and Lillian Norwood sang a character duo entitled "Yoo Whoo," which also went over in big style.

"The Passing Show" is at the Atlanta theater all this week and every evening during their stay, stars of the company, will sing at the 6 o'clock concert at this station. On Saturday morning, between the hours of midnight Friday and 1 a. m., the stars will give a special concert at which time their friends in many distant cities will be listening in.

In addition to these great performances, "Warner's Seven Aces," the Atlanta Constitution orchestra, added to their ever growing reputation among radio fans by rendering some of the snappiest and jazziest numbers in their repertoire.

The Afterglow

Great was the outpouring of the Christmas spirit in Atlanta in 1922.

Churches, schools, organizations, neighborhoods, individuals, vied with each other in helping the needy, sick and unfortunate.

Would it not be well while our hearts are warm with the afterglow of the Yuletide feeling to give what aid we can to these organizations in Atlanta that are striving all the while to help those in distress?

So could we have a part in translating the Christmas spirit into a daily ministry of unselfishness.

For Welfare of Order.
The conference was called by Grand Sire Eastin, who is the supreme commander of all the 2,500,000 Odd Fellows in the world, for a discussion of affairs of the order and to bring the grand masters and grand secretaries together to bring about a mutual understanding of conditions in the various sections of the country.

Homer McClatchey, past grand master, spoke on the "Orphans' Home Work" at the initial session which was held Monday morning at the Piedmont hotel, and which was given over to a discussion of matters of national importance and lasted through the great part of the afternoon. Following the first meeting the delegates were given a banquet by the Georgia lodge of Odd Fellows Monday evening at the hotel.

Delegates attending the conference are representatives of grand lodges of Georgia, Mississippi, North and South Carolina, Alabama and Florida.

MRS. MARIE LAHATTE IS CALLED BY DEATH

Mrs. Marie Miller LaHatte died at her home, 464 North Boulevard, last night at 10:30. She is survived by her husband, Macon Thornton LaHatte; one son, Miller Thornton LaHatte; two sisters, Mrs. L. F. ## Have It Done Right

In an audit of your business you want, above everything else, accuracy. You want to know all the facts. A partial or an incorrect audit by an inexperienced accountant is often worse than no audit at all.

For accuracy, for ALL the facts, be sure you employ a firm of established reputation, that KNOWS its business. Have it done right; there is no other satisfactory way.

JAMES G. TRUITT DIES IN LAGRANGE

LaGrange, Ga., January 8.—(Special.)—James G. Truitt, one of LaGrange's most prominent and influential citizens, died here Monday morning from an attack of pneumonia. He was 74 years old and came to LaGrange when a small boy.

Through his business connections he was probably the most widely known man in this section of the state, being intimately connected with nearly every phase of the growth and development of LaGrange and its vicinity. He was a trustee of LaGrange college to which recently he contributed $50,000.

He is survived by his widow, three brothers, C. and S. Truitt, and LaGrange, and a sister, Mrs. C. D. Hudson, Mrs. W. L. Young, Mrs. C. J. Nelson and Miss Anna Truitt, all of LaGrange. The funeral will be held Tuesday at the residence at 2:30 o'clock, interment following in Hillview cemetery.

EMBASSY LIQUORS WILL BE CHECKED

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Washington, January 8.—A close check will be maintained by federal prohibition authorities on liquor shipments consigned to foreign embassies and legations here with a view to determining whether disproportionate supplies are being brought through the American customs to these favored destinations.

If the investigation discloses that an embassy or legation is receiving supplies in excess of the needs of its staff for personal use and official entertaining, the state department will be asked to call the attention of the government to the situation.

The watch on liquor supplies of foreign legations was an outgrowth of charges that some legations in Washington are being used as the medium of supplying the local bootleg trade, it was said officially today.

Organized Traffic Rumored.
Rumors of an organized traffic in liquor have been declared to have been found during successive raids in three apartment houses in the fashionable northwest section. Lieutenant O. T. Davis, chief of the vice squad, under whose direction the raids were conducted, declared information had reached the police that attaches of some of these establishments have been parties to this traffic.

JOSEPH WOODWARD DIES AT GRIFFIN HOME

Griffin, Ga., January 8.—(Special.) Joseph A. Woodward, 61, died at his home here Sunday night at 6 o'clock, following a stroke of apoplexy. Mr. Woodward had been in good health previous to the stroke.

Mr. Woodward served in the war between the states, entering the service when he was 16 years of age.

He is survived by four daughters, Mrs. N. L. Reagan, of Nashville; Mrs. Mary Hays Mills, Miss Laura Woodward and Miss May Woodward.

Sealed bids will be received at the office of the City Controller, Atlanta, Georgia, until 10 A. M. January 10, 1923, for the sale of the following bonds: 5 per cent. Street Improvement Bonds, dated January 1st, in denominations of $1,000 and $500, one to nine years, serially, interest payable semi-annually, principal and interest payable at City Treasurer's Office, Atlanta, Georgia, or at the City's Fiscal Agency in New York City. Bonds are in coupon form, but may be registered, both as principal and interest. These bonds are issued by the City of Atlanta for the purpose of providing funds for the paving of streets in pursuance of an act amending paragraph 1, section 7, article 7 of the Constitution of the State of Georgia, providing for the sale of bonds to improve streets. These bonds have been validated by the Superior Court, Fulton County, and are now being sold.

Each bid must be accompanied by a certified check for two per cent. of the amount of bonds which check must be made payable to the City of Atlanta. The right is reserved to reject any and all bids. Bids should be marked "Proposals for Bonds" and addressed to L. N. Bagdasarian, Chairman of Finance Committee, care City Controller, City Hall, Atlanta, Georgia.

Circular giving full particulars, including financial statement, will be furnished upon request.
R. GRAHAM WEST, City Controller.

Public Notice
The Ordinance Committee of General Council of the City of Atlanta will hold a public hearing on Friday, January 19th, at 3 P. M., in the City Hall, to consider the following amendments to the Zoning Ordinance:

Change from a business district to an apartment house district, that area south of the right-of-way of the Southern Railway, bounded by Peachtree Street on both sides of Peachtree Street, that is now located in a business district.

To change from a business district to a residential district, that area on the north side of DeKalb Avenue, between Southern and Peachtree Streets, including those lots situated on the northeast corner of DeKalb Avenue and Southern and Peachtree Streets, and the northeast corner of DeKalb Avenue and Peachtree Street, that is now located in a business district.

H. D. TITLER, Jr., Engineer and Secy. City Planning Commission.

CURTIS COMPANY WINNER IN SUIT

Washington, January 8.—Declaring that the "engagement of competent agents obligated to devote their time and attention to developing the principal's business" is the exclusion of all others, where nothing else appears, has long been recognized as proper and unobjectionable," the supreme court today overruled the federal trade commission and pronounced the wholesale distribution system of the Curtis Publishing company lawful under the Clayton act.

The decision upheld a ruling by the third circuit court of appeals to which the company took its case when cited by the commission.

The commission had ordered the publishing company to desist from entering into agreements prohibiting its agents from selling or distributing the magazines or newspapers of other publishers. Asserting that the contract complained of by the federal trade commission was one of agency and not of sale, and therefore was not prohibited by the Clayton act, the court, whose opinion was rendered by Justice McKeen, stated that the Curtis Publishing company, agency contracts were made without unlawful motive and in the orderly course of an expanding business.

COMMITTEE'S REPORT TO FAVOR DAUGHTRY
Refusal of Keller to Testify Will Be Taken Up Today.

Washington, January 8.—The house in impeachment proceedings possesses the power held by courts to compel the attendance and testimony of witnesses. Representative Summers, democrat, Texas, declared today in a report filed with the judiciary committee in the Keller-Daugherty controversy.

The question has never been settled in this country, said Mr. Summers, who added that decision in this case probably would establish a precedent. It will come before the committee tomorrow at its meeting to formulate a resolution to impeach the charges made against Attorney General Daugherty by Representative Keller, republican, Minnesota.

The committee report also, it is said, will hold that the charges against William J. Burns, chief of the department of justice bureau of investigation, which were aired during the general hearing, were not sustained.

VAN SWERINGEN GETS CHESAPEAKE & OHIO
Cleveland, Ohio, January 8.—Control of the Chesapeake & Ohio railway by the Van Sweringen interests of Cleveland was formally announced today in a statement by O. P. Van Sweringen, following an announcement from Washington that the Van Sweringens had made formal application to the interstate commerce commission for permission to hold places on the board of directors of that company.

O. P. Van Sweringen, chairman of the board of the Nickel Plate, issued the following statement:
